

SINCLAIR CHARGED WITH CONTEMPT

MAY CARRY TAX CUT TO CONGRESS

DEMOCRATS REFUSE TO ACCEPT AMOUNT SET BY COMMITTEE

Minority Faction Is Fighting For Slice Of $300,000,000

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Temporarily checked in the house ways and means committee in their drive for a huge tax reduction program, Democratic leaders today laid plans to carry the fight to the floor of congress.

Despite the fact that an overwhelming majority of the committee fixed $250,000,000 as the limit of tax reduction to be recommended to congress, Democratic members held that this was a forced compromise and that they are not bound to support it.

"I predict the tax reduction bill will carry a greater figure when it leaves the house, and the senate will cut taxes at least $300,000,000," said Rep. John Garner, (D) of Texas, minority leader on the committee.

"This figure represents the judgment of the committee, based upon an examination of treasury figures of the future probable surpluses," said Rep. William Green, (R) of Iowa, chairman.

The adoption of a limiting figure but $250,000,000 more than was fixed by the Senate Finance Committee, the Treasury Mellon occasioned surprise in political circles. Two Republican members of the committee have within the last week declared that they favored a $300,000,000 cut. Garner charged that they "quit cold under the lash of political patronage."

With the adoption of the limiting figure, the committee also decided to distribute the tax cuts to corporations paying income tax, automobile buyers who must pay a three per cent purchase tax, and to consider reduction or abolition of admission and clue due taxes.

The committee at the same time, rejected the recommendation of the treasury to adjust the middle brackets of the individual income tax and to repeal the federal inheritance tax.

The committee also voted to abolish the tax on cereal beverages, which yields but $150,000 a year. This tax had been applied at the request of Lincoln C. Andrews, former "czar," as an aid to prohibition enforcement, but the new treasury enforcement regime told help and should be abolished.

Among the proposals being considered by the committee for the final draft of the tax reduction bill, it was learned, are: reduction of the corporation tax 13 1/2 to 11 1/2 per cent, total $172,000,000; reduction of the auto tax fifty per cent, total $35,000,000; with the remainder applied to the relief of small corporations; theater and other admissions under $3.00; and club dues. The war stamp taxes would remain.

Rep. Garner made known that he has proposed a new basis for taxing income of corporations between $2,000 and $15,000. He would put a tax per cent on earnings of $2,000 to $7,000, seven per cent on earnings, $7,000 to $12,000, nine per cent on earnings, $12,000 to $15,000, and the general rate, now 13 1/2 per cent, would apply to corporations earning above $15,000 annually.

The estate tax, which has been the subject of a lone fight, failed to receive the committee's recommendation for a six to seventeen vote, while the proposal to adjust the intermediate brackets lost, two to twenty-one.

Previous to the committee's action, under Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills made a plea to hold the tax cut to $225,000,000 on the ground that a further tax cut might cause a treasury deficit.

GREATER NEW YORK NEARS TEN MILLION

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Creation of a new "metropolitan district" under the sanction of the United States Census Bureau, today had given "New York proper" a population of 9,500,000, according to the Merchants Association of New York. The new district embraces a radius of within forty miles of the City Hall as compared with the old ten-mile radius.

SAPIRO PRAISES FORD'S COURAGE

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 22.—Aaron Sapiro, of Chicago, who sued Henry Ford for a million dollars alleging libel, now admires Ford "because when faced with his enormous falsehood against the Jews he had enough strength to overcome his pride and apologize." This was Sapiro's message to 3,000 Jews who assembled in the B'Nai Abraham Synagogue last night. His statements were loudly applauded.

GRAND JURY INDICTS SEVEN

WOMEN BRIDGE BUILDERS SOON BE COMMON

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Women bridge builders and mining engineers will not be uncommon fifty years hence, in the opinion of Wynona Mallory, 24, a member of the technical service department of the Western Electric Company's plant here.

Miss Mallory, a bit peeved over her sisters' "inferiority complex" which began with Eve in the Garden of Eden, believes all woman need to attain success at structural engineering jobs is a chance. "Men aver," says Miss Mallory, "that it is useless expenditure of money to give a girl a scientific education because she gets married shortly after being graduated and her knowledge is never put to any practical use. This fallacy has been allowed to go unchallenged too long."

"Women hesitate to attempt success at science simply because they underestimate their own intelligence. They have been told for so long that the home and hearth is her true sphere that she is expected to fail in any other work. If women would fight for a chance to prove themselves in science as a mother fights for her child, this nonsense about boys having all the brains would be stamped ridiculous."

Miss Mallory, who graduated in 1923 from the engineering school at cases as a method of overcoming the University of Kansas, advocates the "inferiority complex" in women the substitution of structural toys for dolls among baby girls.

U. S. SUPREME COURT SPEEDS UP BUSINESS TO SET EXAMPLE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The United States Supreme Court has decided to become a model for other courts in response to a nationwide demand to end the law's delays, close observers of the court declared today.

Laying aside other business, the court in one full swoop rejected seventy-seven petitions for writs of review and virtually cleaned its docket of these petitions.

Chief Justice Taft, it was pointed out, had indicated a determination to decide these petitions promptly, since this method often is used by litigants merely to secure a delay in the final disposition of their case.

The court also rejected four petitions for reviews, because the lawyers made their briefs too long.

Under authority of congress, the court has established rules prescribing methods of stating petitions for writs of certiorari. One petition, the court pointed out, was fifty-one pages long, and was accompanied by a brief seventy-two pages long and an appendix of ninety pages.

STRIKING MINERS LIVE COMFORTABLY IN UNION BARRACKS

Apparently Happy In Cramped Quarters In Mine Districts

RUSSELLTON, Pa., Nov. 22.—The striking western Pennsylvania miners may be destitute, but there has been no intense suffering thus far, and prospects are they will spend a relatively comfortable winter.

This was the impression gathered here today when the writer, accompanied by Philip Murray, international vice-president of the United Mine Workers of America, visited this community where the miners are living in barracks constructed by the union. Approximately 155 families are in the barracks, and 250 others have made their homes in halls, churches, and private dwellings.

The barracks, single-story affairs twenty feet wide and 120 feet long, are constructed of single boards and lined with tar paper. Each structure contains twenty rooms ten feet wide and twelve feet long. Each row is built on posts and is raised off the ground.

Each family of six or less is given two rooms as their "home." A family of twelve or less rates three rooms, while more than that, particularly if there are grown children, warrants a four room "house."

There are no bathrooms in the barracks. Water is obtained from three wells and a spring. Sanitation facilities have been provided a short distance from the living quarters.

But the miners and their families appear not to be mindful of the time they have been unemployed. All of them have been out of work eight months, and many have been on strike two years or more.

Little children playing about the temporary houses are full of smiles, and appear to be cheerful. John Rajnic, president of the local union, said the miners do not worry over the outcome of the strike.

"The miner is different from the average man," said Rajnic. "When times are good, the miner is happy and spends his money freely, when times are bad, he is just as happy if he only makes an occasional dollar."

The men, however, are keenly interested in strike conditions throughout the nation. One of the first questions asked Murray on arrival here was an inquiry into general conditions.

The miners place every confidence in their leaders, and display the implicit faith in their faith in them by seldom grumbling over their method of living, or questioning the procedure toward the ending of the strike, Murray explained.

KILLS OWN FATHER

LANCASTER, O., Nov. 22.—When a Pennsylvania work train, backing over a bridge one mile west of here today, ran over a man and killed him, E. V. Mohler, conductor on the train, dismounted and found that the victim was his father, George Mohler, 80. The deceased was a well known farmer in this vicinity and it is believed that he discovered the train approaching him too late to escape it.

Says He Got Gifts

Senator Arthur R. Robinson, of Indiana, has confirmed reports that Mrs. Robinson once received a pearl necklace from D. C. Stephenson, former Klan leader, now serving a life term at Michigan State, Ind., for murder. The senator says, also, he received a Shrine pin of nominal value from the former "dragon." The report emanated from a grand jury investigation of papers discovered in Stephenson's secret "black boxes." "I hope the prosecutors will publish everything there is in the 'black boxes,'" Senator Robinson says, "as there is nothing in my whole public career I desire to conceal."

MOURNERS FALL TO RIVER; 37 INJURED

MADRID, Nov. 22.—Thirty-seven mourners were injured, seven of them seriously, today, when a bridge over the Jalon River in Asturias collapsed under the weight of the funeral cortege of Jose Iglesias, miners' leader, who was recently murdered by radicals.

More than one hundred followers and the hearse bearing the corpse were on the bridge when it collapsed. The whole party fell into the river.

KEARNS DEPARTS

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Jack Kearns, loser in his first legal skirmish with Jack Dempsey, was scheduled to leave for Chicago today where he will engage in the business of piloting midweight champion Mickey Walker safely through his bout with Paul Berlenbach Friday night.

CABINET RESIGNS

BRUSSELS, Nov. 22.—A Liberal-Catholic coalition government for Belgium was in prospect today following the resignation of Premier Jaspars' cabinet. Many of the political leaders are opposing a general election until the nation's finances are further stabilized.

AERONAUTICS AGE DAWNING IN NATION DIRECTOR ASSERTS

Declares Commercial Development Is Well Started

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The "aeronautics age" is dawning in the United States.

In the near future thousands of luxuriously equipped airplanes will travel on schedule over charted and illuminated air routes.

"Airplane taxis will await the call of tired out busy business men. Private aircraft, safe as automobiles, will sweep the skies."

Painting this remarkable picture of aeronautics of the near future, Clarence M. Young, director of aeronautics of the commerce department, today declared it at first lagged in development of aerial navigation, the country now is moving ahead at top speed to build one of the world's finest "commercial air marines."

High points in Young's official report to Secretary of Commerce Hoover include: "Airplane construction in the year just closed in this country was valued at more than $20,000,000, a sixty per cent gain over 1925."

"Airplanes of new design are replacing the war surplus type, which have been doing service up to the present."

"New air routes are being charted in all parts of the country; cities vie with each other in the construction of improved air ports."

"It is estimated that by the end of 1928 a thousand airports will be in operation, a large percentage municipal."

"Numerous cities and towns are becoming 'airmarked,' one company alone having painted city names on more than 4,000 of its stations."

"On June 30, there were 4,121 of lighted airways in operation. The commerce department will continue as rapidly as possible to light the airways, since the economical use of aircraft demands flying at night and in all vicissitudes of weather and season."

Commercial airplanes were being put into service at the rate of 100 a month at the beginning of the new fiscal year. Two hundred physicians are examining pilots, while a force of fifty experienced aircraft and engine inspectors is being built up by the department.

The bureau of standards has started a study of methods of reducing airplane noises and strength of airplane joints and fittings and the stability of planes of different types. Many new radio aeronautics problems are on the program, to supplement progress already made in the investigation of radio telephony, directive radio beacons and beacon markers.

BRATIANU WAVERS

ROME, Nov. 22.—The conviction that the Bratianu regime in Romania was waning and would soon be destroyed by democracy was expressed today by M. Manolescu, recently acquitted in Bucharest of having conspired to bring Prince Carol to the Romanian throne.

Manolescu was interviewed at the Acqui Spa, in Piedmont, before he left for France.

HARRY WENT OUT WITH THE WASTE PAPER

TROY, O., Nov. 22.—The Count of Monte Cristo, who escaped from prison in a coffin, had nothing on Harry Derr who, according to authorities here, escaped from the County Jail in a waste basket.

Derr and his cousin, Albert Derr, both of Urbana, are alleged to have held up Michael Urbich, meat shop proprietor at Piqua, Sept. 24. Urbich resisted the bandits and was wounded when one of them fired four shots at him.

GROOMS INDICTED FOR MANSLAUGHTER AT SPECIAL SESSION

One Case Ignored—Bartlett And Sayre Are Accused

Walter Grooms, 18, whose auto struck and fatally injured Roy Vernon Archer, 21, on S. Detroit St., November 16, was indicted for manslaughter which presented seven true bills and ignored one case in eight considered Monday.

The jury made its complete report at 4:30 p. m., after being in special session all day. More than twenty-four witnesses were examined. No examination of the County Jail was made.

An indictment charging robbery was returned against Troy Bartlett, Clarksburg, W. Va., who was indicted by J. A. Wipert, manager of The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. branch store, Main and West Sts., as one of two youthful bandits who held up the grocery store October 22.

Earl Sayre, Clarksburg, W. Va., companion of Bartlett, who denied implication in the holdup, was indicted Monday on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. A revolver was found in his possession when police arrested him October 23 as a suspect in the robbery case.

John Morgan, colored, was indicted on a charge of concealing stolen property. Police arrested him on a charge of wholesale thefts of furnishings from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Darling, colored, October 22. The alleged loot was later discovered in a house rented by Morgan at Wilberforce.

The stolen goods, valued at $150, included three room-size rugs, two sheets, six pillow slips, four small rugs, silverware, knives and forks, one leather tick, a Remington rifle, a gold hunting case watch, two black, silk dresses, a basket of wash clothes, sheets and other clothing and a set of carpenter tools.

An indictment for removing mortgaged property out of the state without the consent of the mortgagee, was returned against George Pettiford, colored, Pettiford, the indictment charged, made a mortgage to Fred A. Johnston August 7, 1926, on a Big Six Buick coupe, valued at $150.

Indictments were also returned against Bertha Harris, colored, on a charge of cutting Geneva Freeman, also colored, with intent to kill October 14; and against William Hicks, colored, on a statutory charge, the offense, police say, having been committed against his step-daughter, Eula Raspberry, November 14.

The single case ignored was that of James Carpenter.

Almost every afternoon this week may be devoted to arraigning prisoners on the indictments in Common Pleas Court.

Personnel of the grand jury: J. Walker Gibney, foreman; J. J. Molitor, Ethel Johnson, Joseph Adams, F. S. Linkhart, J. C. Short, Jessie Turnbull, Josephine Ankeney, A. P. Baker, S. P. Faulkner, J. F. Ketter, George D. Durnbaugh, Ada Baker, Howard Norris and Laura Wilkins.

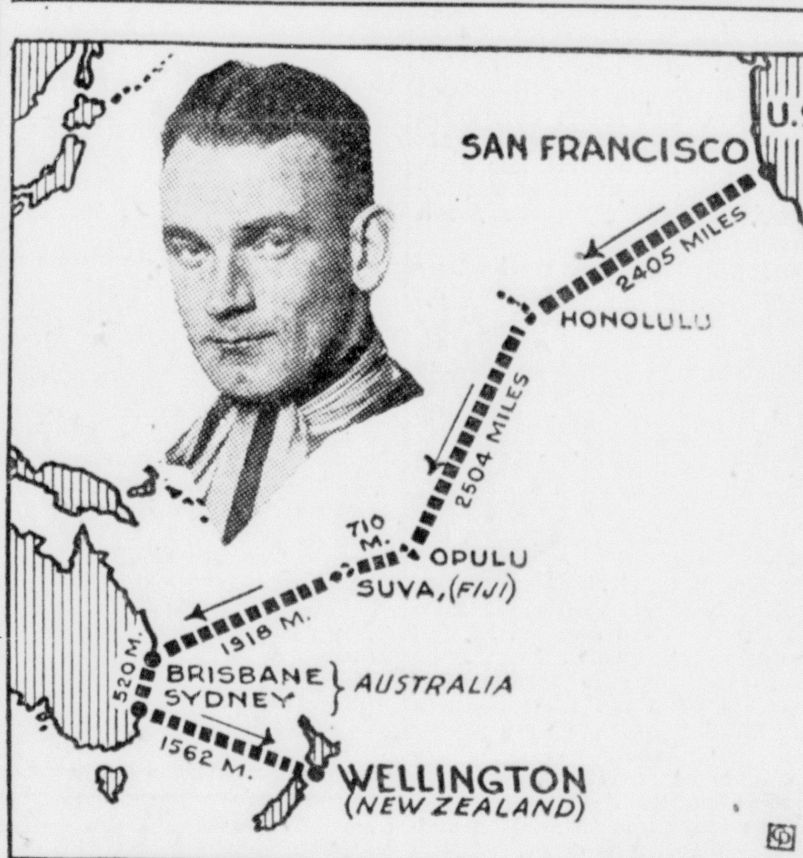

BATAVIA FLAMES CAUSE HEAVY LOSS

BATAVIA, O., Nov. 21.—A $30,000 fire which destroyed the J. W. Colder cannery factory and the Cincinnati, Georgetown and Portsmouth Electric Railroad station, at Amelia, near here early today, for a time threatened to spread to other buildings in the village.

A south wind which sprang up when the fire was at its height, blew the sparks away from the central part of the village and though several houses had started to burn, these fires were brought under control. The cannery factory, which was one of the largest in this section of the country, was covered with insurance.

ry could not be found. Sheriff Frank Matthews was out of town last week, and no information was given out concerning the escape until today. Deputies at the jail say that Derr probably made his getaway by hiding in one of the huge waste containers just before they were carried out last Friday. An investigation is under way.

GILES STARTS OCEAN FLIGHT

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, San Francisco, Nov. 22.—A man-made bird was winging westward today in another attempt to conquer the Pacific. Delayed by diverse weather conditions for the past week, Captain Frederick A. Giles, British airman, again took to the air at 7:24 this morning. He hopes to be in Hawaii before noon tomorrow.

COOLIDGE ADMINISTRATION TO SIDE STEP SOFT COAL STRIKE

Will Not Sponsor Peace Conference Unless Assured Of Success—Not Anxious To Assume Blame For Failure

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The Coolidge administration doesn't intend to become actively involved in the soft coal strike.

It is willing to sponsor a peace conference between Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia operators and miners only if both sides signify beforehand that such negotiations likely would be successful. It doesn't want to assume any blame if a meeting is called and then fails.

If no word is forthcoming from the operators that they are ready to negotiate, the administration will follow its hands off policy based on the grounds, as outlined by President Coolidge, that the government is without power to intervene in the present situation.

An outline of the government's position has been given John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, who was a member of the labor delegation which asked the president to summon a peace conference to end the strike of 150,000 miners.

Government officials expressed the belief today that the operators would decline to enter negotiations at this time. They pointed out that the mine owners turned down peace overtures advanced by Gov. Donahue of Ohio after the workers had agreed to negotiate a new wage scale.

There has been no change in the situation since then to cause belief that the operators would alter their stand. On the contrary, some of the operators have posted further wage cuts and have been fortified in their fight by federal court injunctions against picketing and molesting of non-union laborers.

Lewis announced today that the miners are prepared "to go into a conference without prejudice and without commitments," indicating that the union may compromise on a wage scale to obtain peace.

"We believe that a conference should be held to terminate an intolerable situation," he added.

TOLEDO U. PLANS TO STOP "HAZING"

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 22.—"Hazing" at Toledo University may be done away with, it was learned today, as a result of recent complaints by parents of some students to the board of directors.

During the annual bag rush between sophomores and freshmen this year, one youth was kidnapped by members of the opposing class and held prisoner for some time, it is claimed. College authorities are considering substituting some other event for the rush.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The ring-leader of the recent native revolt in the Solomon Islands, with forty of his men, was captured by police after a skirmish in which two natives were killed and one wounded, a Central News dispatch from Wellington, Australia, said today.

OIL COMPANY HEADS AND SLEUTHS NAMED IN COURT PETITION

Charges Result Of Jury Tampering In Conspiracy Trial

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—District Attorney Peyton Gordon went into federal court here today and formally petitioned Justice Frederic L. Siddons to adjudge Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire oil magnate, two of his officials, and three officials of the Burns detective agency in contempt of court.

Those named in the government's petition besides Sinclair himself were: H. Mason Day, vice-president of the Sinclair Exploration Co.; A. Sheldon Clark, vice-president of the Sinclair Refining Co.; Wm. J. Burns, titular head of the detective agency bearing his name; W. Sherman Burns, his son; Charles Veitsch, manager of the Baltimore branch of the Burns agency.

The citations were requested of the court because of the jury shadowing activities of the Burns agents, which the government contends was performed at the instance of Sinclair and his representatives. Clark and Day, according to the government, were the "contact men" between Sinclair and the jury, the petition charges. Veitsch, the government charges, was the "pay off" man.

Today's action follows a two-weeks' grand jury investigation into the alleged jury-tampering in the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy trial. This alleged tampering, combined with "loose talking" by Juror Edward Kidwell, led Justice Siddons to declare a mistrial several weeks ago just as the government had concluded its representation of evidence.

Sinclair and two of his aides, H. Mason Day and Sheldon Clark, already have been charged in complaints lodged with a U. S. Commissioner with conspiracy to illegally influence a petit jury. Day and Clark are out, respectively, on $25,000 and $10,000 bond. No effort has been made to arrest Sinclair. The two lieutenants, evidence has proven, received reports from the Burns men on the jury surveillance, and the government calls them "contact men" for the oil magnate.

Federal Justice Siddons, presiding over the oil case, declared a mistrial on November 2 on the basis of four affidavits. Two were filed by assistant U. S. Attorneys Neil Burkinshaw and Walter M. Shea. They told of a raid on a local hotel and the seizing of all the reports made by the Burns operatives on their observation of the activities of the Fall-Sinclair jurors. The reports included information on the financial status of several in the jury box, and on the characters and reputations of their friends and next-door neighbors.

"It is my belief, and I aver," swore Burkinshaw, "that said detectives were hired by Harry F. Sinclair, a defendant in this cause."

The remaining two affidavits were filed by Don Key King, local reporter, and J. Ray Akers, a street car conductor. These alleged that Edward J. Kidwell, a juror, had indulged in loose talk in a "soft drink" parlor which was sufficient to warrant a mistrial.

"If I don't get an auto as long as a block out of this case I'll be disappointed," they quoted him as saying.

WOMAN MUST SERVE PRISON SENTENCE

CLEVELAND, Nov. 22.—Mrs. Daisy L. Burneson must serve sixty days in the Canton Workhouse for an alleged attempt to prejudice the mind of Harry Smart, a prospective juror in the trial of Josie Kirby here over a year ago, in connection with the activities of the Cleveland Discount Company.

The United States Supreme Court yesterday refused to review her case. She had been sentenced by Federal Judge Killits on the contempt of court charge.

LINE NEVER BUSY

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The British post-office is not prepared to abandon trans-Atlantic telephonic service even though the first ten months operation has not been profitable.

The postmaster general's department announces that up to November 6 there have been 830 calls from Great Britain and 891 from the United States. It is generally conceded that the business will have to be much greater than this to prosper financially, but the post-office holds that during a greater part of this period the service was in an experimental stage and that it is a service which is commercially feasible and should be carried on for the benefit of commerce.

TRANSJORDAN ARABS
FIGHT BRITAIN OVER
BOUNDARY TREATY

JERUSALEM, Nov. 22—"Arab leaders in Transjordan are dissatisfied with the agreement drafted by the British government for Emir Abdullah's signature. Yielding to pressure from paramount Sheikhs the Emir has returned the document unsigned with suggestions for many important changes.

Dissatisfaction is especially rife among the Sheikhs because of fixing the boundaries between Transjordan and Palestine, Syria, Nejd, and Hedjaz, the British authorities concerned are said to have failed to take into account the wishes of the Transjordanians.

It is claimed that the northern frontier has never been definitely delineated, the Palestine Administration in agreement with the French authorities in Syria altering the line without reference to the Emir.

Arab newspapers say Transjordan is bitter because it has been deprived of El Hama near Tiberias, in order to give "Zionist Palestine the lands necessary for the future electrification scheme."

The affairs of the Emirate are also said to be in great disorder, and its authority in most vital matters, nil. The commission set up by the British representative to inquire into the future of the Emirate took it upon itself to discuss the whole basis of a constitution for Transjordan and was promptly dismissed. The drafting of the constitution was left entirely to the Colonial Office in London. This draft when submitted for Emir Abdullah's signature was returned as untenable and repugnant from the Arab nationalists' point of view.

Abdullah's rejection of the agreement has failed to appease the nationalists, who continue to question his right to rule over them. They accuse him of undue friendship towards Britain. In return for the annual grant-in-aid for his "Civil List," amounting in 1925 to 20,000 lbs. and in 1926, 13,000 lbs.

Troop No. 41, Boy Scouts of America, will hold its regular weekly meeting at the new Scout cabin Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock, according to an announcement by Deputy Scout Commissioner R. H. Kingsbury.

Troop No. 43 held a meeting Monday night and the boys enjoyed a "feed" prepared by Mrs. J. J. Stout, wife of Scoutmaster Stout.

Diet and Health

BY LULU HUNT PETERS, M.D. AUTHOR OF "DIET AND HEALTH" AND "DIET FOR CHILDREN"

My Dear Followers:

When sending for material which we offer you, please remember to enclose a STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose TEN cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, NOT OVER 200 WORDS, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest. Don't forget the STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE if you expect me to send you the information I have offered. — Lulu Hunt Peters.

Answers to Correspondents
Teeth—Look to Them!

I've just come from a little bout with my dentist. Didn't hurt much, because I go at least every six months and if there are any little beginnings of decay, they are attended to. Then my teeth get a thorough cleaning.

Do you know that no matter how thoroughly and how often you wash your teeth, you can't get all of the tartar off, and there is a little accumulation that should be scraped off every six months? It is hard, because it is caused by a precipitation of mineral salts of the saliva as well as bacteria and food debris. We have known for a good many years that diet has a great deal to do with the teeth of the young, but it is only in recent years that it has been known that the diet has also considerable to do with adult teeth. Yes, the teeth are affected by diet even after full growth. There is no doubt that decay is kept at bay when the teeth are maintained in their normal hardness by a proper diet, and certainly the gums are kept in better condition, and pyorrhea discouraged.

I was interested to read an article which stated that Dr. William Hunter informed members of the British Medical association that a large proportion of the insanity among the 133,000 inmates in their asylums was due to poisoning of the brain, chiefly from bad teeth! Dr. Hunter contends that many cases of neuritis and neurasthenia (so-called nervous attacks and mental depression) result from septic infections largely from the teeth. He believes that the authorities should compel every mental hospital to maintain a competent dental equipment for treating its patients.

I told you a short time ago about a report given by a certain industrial organization. It stated that of 185 patients seeking relief from various disorders, over eighty-two per cent were relieved by the removal of dental infections! Certainly it is wise for us to make good

Those of you who are anxious to reduce may have this by sending ten cents in stamps and a self-addressed, stamped envelope. (Of course, I won't mind if you get the book, too!)

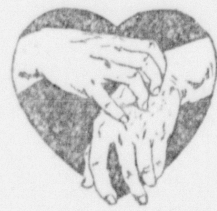

I'm glad you wrote, A., for your letter will strengthen the morale of those who are easily discouraged by their friends and relatives, who really are well intentioned but uninformed. It is not unusual at all to look drawn and haggard while reducing, and you just have to realize this and hold the thought firmly in mind that no matter how you look while reducing—if you do it correctly—when you get down to normal and are on your maintenance diet, you will look 100 per cent (yes, sometimes 1,000 per cent) better than you did before you started.

Inherited Fat

"Both my mother and myself were very much over-weight, mother weighing 207 and I, 225. Naturally I thought mine was inherited, but I have gotten over that illusion, for both mother and I have reduced by following your book, Diet and Health, with Key to the Calories. Mother has lost forty-six pounds, and is down to 161, and I have lost fifty-eight, down to 168. We have passed the word on to others, and among us. Your warning that one's friends and relatives would say how old and haggard we looked, is true. We both passed through these stages, safely, and now each of us looks ten years younger! With everlasting gratitude, A."

First, let me say that the instructions in my book are similar to those I give you in the column frequently, and these we have in condensed form in a little pamphlet.

IS THERE NO RELIEF FROM SKIN TORTURE?

Must I Continue to Suffer the Unbearable Itching?

Are you one of those unfortunate who are going through life suffering with a skin disease, making you uncomfortable, making you less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep? You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in many forms of skin disease. Thousands of letters of gratitude prove its worth.

"I feel so happy for what S.S.S. has done for me that I want others to know about it. I suffered twenty long years from eczema. At times the itching was unbearable. During that time, I used all kinds of salves without receiving any real benefit. After taking six bottles of S.S.S., I was cured of this dreadful disease. I recommend S.S.S. to anyone suffering from eczema, because I cannot praise it enough for what it has done for me." Cleophas Forte, Soldiers and Sailors Home, Quincy, Ill.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause. S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger is more economical.

"Playing the leading role calls for a perfect voice condition at all times. The throat must always be clear to avoid the embarrassment of coughing during the performance. To have this and at the same time enjoy smoking was a considerable problem for me for many years. I saw so many men smoking Lucky Strikes that I tried them. I am very happy I did. In addition to their most delightful flavor, Lucky Strikes cause me no throat irritation and my voice is always in shape for my work on the stage."

Ceremony Unites Couple Here On Monday

The marriage of Miss Eva May Ormon, of Boston, Mass., to Mr. Ralph Hayes Hamilton, N. King St., was quietly solemnized at the rectory of St. Bridget Catholic Church at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The Rev. Father David Powers, pastor, officiated using the single ring ceremony. Miss Ormon, whose charm and attractive personality has won her many friends during her short stay in Xenia, was gown in brown satin back crepe with hat and other accessories to match, and carried a bride's bouquet of orchids and yellow rose buds.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Higgins, the best man and matron of honor, and the ceremony was witnessed by a few friends. Supper was served to the wedding party later at Mr. Hamilton's studio.

Where Dr. and Mrs. A. B. Kester played Lohengrin's wedding march as the bride and groom entered. Mrs. Kester playing a piano more than 100 years old.

The table was beautifully decorated, a color scheme of yellow and white being carried out. There were covers for Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Fraver, who were celebrating their tenth wedding anniversary, Dr. and Mrs. Kester and Mr. and Mrs. Higgins.

Later the bride and groom left on a short trip but will return to Xenia before leaving for Bermuda, where they will spend the winter.

Mrs. Hamilton is the daughter of Mr. James L. Ormon, Boston, Mass., and met Mr. Hamilton while he was at the Hotel Aspinwall, Lenox, Mass. When Mr. Hamilton came to his home here he brought his bride-to-be with him, but kept his proposed marriage a secret until an announcement party at West Alexandria a month ago.

Mr. Hamilton is the son of Mrs. Mary E. Hamilton, 847 N. King St., and is a graduate of Central High School, Xenia, and of the Catholic University at Washington, D. C.

He is now principally interested in the hotel business at Lenox and Bermuda, but for years has been best known as a lecturer and as creator of the Hamilton Travelogue, lectures illustrated by motion pictures, which he has presented before hundreds of schools and colleges.

Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton expect to spend a part of each year at Mr. Hamilton's home here.

FORMER XENIAN WED TO COLUMBUS GIRL
The marriage of Miss Carolyn Elizabeth Bowen, daughter of Mrs. Florence Bowen, 50 E. Fifth Ave., Columbus to Mr. Warren Whitmer Hart, Chicago, Ill., formerly of Xenia, took place Saturday evening at 7:30 o'clock, at the home of the bride's uncle, Dr. and Mrs. Charles F. Bowen, 1799 Franklin Ave., Columbus.

The Rev. A. C. Schiff, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Columbus, read the nuptial service in the presence of a small company of relatives and friends. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Benjamin Bowen.

There was a supper for the wedding guests following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Hart left immediately for Chicago, where they will make their home at 1739 E. Sixty-seventh St.

DOWNTOWN COUNTRY CLUB PLANS FROLIC
Entertainment of an unusual character, the nature of which is being kept a deep, dark secret by the committee in charge, is being arranged in connection with the Thanksgiving frolic and dance being sponsored by The Downtown Country Club at the Xenia Country Club Friday night, November 25 from 9 p. m. until 2 a. m.

A novelty program is being prepared and club members intend to make this dance the best of the fall season.

The ticket sale is progressing satisfactorily and the tickets may be purchased from any member.

Music will be supplied by Paul Smitley's Harmonious Buddies from Springfield.

Mr. J. S. Turner, Mrs. Grace Riteour and son, Turner, of Bellbrook, will spend Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. James Turner and family, of Springfield.

Miss Edna Ohm and Miss Helen Whittington, Cincinnati, are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Buck N. West St. They will remain here until Friday.

Mrs. George Street, this city, delivered a missionary talk at the union meeting of the United Brethren and Friends Church of West Elkton Circuit at West Elkton, Sunday evening. She was entertained at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Gillespie.

St. Agnes Guild will have a short business meeting at the Parish House, Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The meeting of the Hilltop Community Club, which was to have been held Friday, November 25 has been postponed one month.

Mrs. Ray Fudge was removed to her home on the Hook Road, Monday, from the McClellan Hospital, after undergoing a serious operation several weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Surface, Dayton, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Sturgeon, 28 Trumbull St.

The Old Town Community Club will hold its program Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock. Each family is requested to bring a dozen small cakes and one pound of fruit.

Glad Community Club will hold a meeting Friday night, November 25, at Community Hall. Refreshments will be served, consisting of meat, sandwiches, open pies and pickles. Each family is asked to bring its own cup.

Women, Weak, Tired, Rundown and Nervous or who suffer ovarian pains, pains in the lower part of the stomach, bearing down pains, female weakness, headaches, backache, melancholia, despondency, nervous derangements, rushes of heat, fainting and indefinite pains, whites, painful or irregular periods, should write to Mrs. Ellen Lovell, 7626 Mass. Kansas City, Mo.

She will entirely FREE and without charge to the inquirer advise of a convenient home method whereby she and other women may have successfully relieved similar troubles.

The most common expression of these thankful women is "I feel like a new woman." And others, "I don't have any pains whatever any more." "I can hardly believe myself that your Wonderful Method has done so much good for me in such a short time." Write today. This advice is entirely free to you. She has nothing to sell.

HURRICANES SWEEP SPAIN; MANY DEAD

MADRID, Nov. 22.—Many deaths and enormous damage to property crops and shipping marked the toll today of severe storm or hurricane. Intensity which have swept southern Spain.

In the southern provinces all the harvests, principally the olive crops, were almost destroyed.

At Malaga, the gale sunk fifteen fishing smacks and twenty-eight men aboard them were reported missing.

Numerous small vessels were wrecked at Tarragona and many of them believed sunk with their crews.

PAYMENT MAY PAY
CLEVELAND, Nov. 22.—Jack Payment was being held for the federal grand jury here under bond of $3,600 today, charged with grand larceny on the high seas. He is alleged to have taken $400 from Jack Doyle, sailor on the Great Lakes steamer City of Buffalo.

Maximum penalty for the offense is a fine of $10,000 or ten years in the penitentiary, or both.

BOBBED-HAIR BANDIT
NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 22.—Mrs. Minnie Paul, 23, of Montreal, Canada, was under arrest today charged with being the bobbed haired accomplice of her husband, who, the police say, has confessed to four holdups during the past month.

SPEEDER CAUGHT
Leonard Mangan, arrested Monday night by Peter Shagin, motorcycle policeman, on a charge of speeding, furnished $10 appearance bond and forfeited it by failure to appear before Mayor John W. Prugh. The officer reported Mangan was driving forty-two miles an hour on E. Main St. in violation of the city traffic ordinance.

Sour Stomach
"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"
Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

MISS IRENE KELLE DIES IN HOSPITAL
Miss Irene Kelle, 22, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kelle, Dayton, formerly of Xenia, died at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Dayton, Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock, relatives here have learned.

Besides her parents, Miss Kelle leaves one sister. She had been in poor health several years and was a patient at the hospital four months.

Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

YOUNG RUN-AWAY WIVES ARE CAUGHT
General delinquency charges are to be preferred in Juvenile Court Wednesday against two youthful wives, Faye Pendell Slickles, 16, and Bertha Slickles Johnson, 17, sisters-in-law held in the County Jail.

The young wives ran away from Xenia November 2 and are reported to have accompanied a Columbus man to that city. Returning home Monday, they were picked up by police and turned over to Juvenile Judge S. C. Wright to whom their disappearance had been reported.

AUDIENCE ENJOYS PASSION PLAY AT CHURCH ON MONDAY
Clearly showing his exhaustive study of each character of the religious drama, Dr. Ira P. Beery, Chicago, was well received by a good sized audience at First M. E. Church, Monday night, when he impersonated characters in the Passion Play when slides of the Oberammergau play were shown, under auspices of Division Ten, Ladies' Aid Society.

Mrs. A. L. Oglesbee, chairman, and Mrs. Charles A. Kelbie, members of her committee, were well pleased with the results of the unusual program.

The presentation was unique in that it was a combination of picture, impersonation and voice.

The program was augmented by musical selections including an organ number by Miss Theda Downing, vocal numbers by Mrs. John Watkins and Miss Leonie Keller and a male quartet, including W. E. Currie, Karl R. Babb, Bayliss Thompson and Roy Spahr. Each number was well received.

Care of Babies

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach.

And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good. And it is so pleasant to take. Taste it yourself, and you'll know why "Children Cry for It."

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or when you even suspect the approach of constipation; or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria. See how quickly all fretfulness or wakefulness will cease!

Only one word of warning: the above advice is true of genuine

BURNING BOOKS

Foreign propaganda doesn't alarm the average American as much as it alarms Mayor Thompson, of Chicago. There is a vast amount of propaganda going on in this country for every nation, nationally and race under the sun. As an American we may feel highly gratified that this is the case.

The foreign nations present their points of view as often and as forcefully as possible to the people of the United States. Why? Because they all value American opinion and American friendship.

Nobody is carrying on any great amount of propaganda in Peru, we may venture. It wouldn't be worth while. Peru is a noble little country, and highly respectful, but it simply doesn't figure for much in the universal economy.

But everybody from everywhere is busy in the United States, trying to get us to think well of his country, of his city, of his industrial area. The friendship of this country is well worth working for.

Nor do we blame the British, the French, the Germans or the Hindus for presenting the merits of their respective points of view to the Americans. We ought to be interested in all these peoples. We ought to have opinions concerning the Ghandi movement in India, the Youth movement in Germany and Czechoslovakia, the Republican movement in Ireland, the rugmaking movement among the repatriated Greeks. Americans should take an intelligent interest in the deplorable conditions of the French in Africa. The more we read and hear about those things, the better citizens of our country and of the world we will be.

Of course it is a matter of regret that it is impossible to have school histories that are not colored somewhat by the sympathies of the writers of histories. It may be that Big Bill has found the British point of view over-emphasized in some of the histories in the Chicago schools. Even so, we shouldn't recommend burning the histories or cremating the images and photographs of King George that may be unearthed in Chicago.

No permanent damage will be done by this propaganda that historians put into their histories. Propaganda in this case, means a point of view with which you do not happen to agree. Well, just wait ten years, and the point of view in the school histories will change. Other histories, other angles on history.

Burning books because of the point of view expressed in them is foolish and dangerous business. Somebody did that at Alexandria once, and the world is still the poorer. Somebody did that at Louvain, and the world of learning still mourns.

Ideas that you don't like are best combatted by ideas. And if you haven't any ideas, it is vain to resort to fire.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON
MILLIONAIRE

Cecil Rhodes, who had as many millions as some people have dollars had two great ambitions.

The first was to do the greatest possible good for barbarous humanity. He donated 13,000 acres of land and $8,000,000 worth of buildings for African missions.

Rhodes' second ambition was to bring the United States and England so close together that there never could be a war between them. Towards accomplishing the second aim he established the $10,000,000 Rhodes scholarship fund.

PROPAGANDA

Mayor "Bill" Thompson of Chicago wants to counteract pro-British propaganda. Probably he would like to make it impossible for any Chicago boys to become Rhodes scholars. That's foolish. American youths who benefit from Rhodes' generosity have the chance to decide for themselves whether they will be pro-British or pro-anything. A few years in Oxford gives them the opportunity to study the English mind, to get a broader point of view.

$20,000

A girl whose cheek was scarred in an automobile accident asks $20,000 for the loss of her beauty. The scar is about three inches long and a quarter of an inch broad. Some will say $20,000 is too much. Others will argue that it is not enough. Appearance does make a difference. It makes people welcome and others disdain our company.

NEWSPAPERS

J. C. McQuiston, advertising manager for the Westinghouse company of East Pittsburgh, declares everybody reads the newspapers to keep abreast the times. McQuiston is right. We hate to be among the few who don't know what is going on.

Advertising men will be interested in the advantages which McQuiston says newspapers have over other mediums; intimacy, flexibility, co-operation tie-ins, reader interest, instant action and ability to check results.

If you don't know what those terms mean ask one of your friends who is in the advertising business.

STARS

An explorer argues that science shows the possibility of there being life of some kind on some planets or some of the stars. The topic is safe enough. No one can prove he is wrong. There is a cash award waiting for the first person who talks to Mars but no one has claimed it.

ADVERTISING

More than one billion, two hundred million dollars were spent in advertising in 1923 in the United States. Between fifty and sixty millions are spent every year by the leading motor car companies. Whatever hastens the conversation of natural resources into forms for human use works a social benefit. Whatever retards such conversion works a social injury. Advertising surely hastens the production and consumption of raw materials. Advertising is one of the great social benefits of mankind.

The Daybook

Of A
New Yorker

By
Burton Rascoe

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—From Henry Bern, president and founder of the Tobacco Society for Voice Culture, comes the following illuminating letter:

"I read your article about the Tobacco society . . . and I regret there should be some puzzle-moment as to its purpose. I'll tell you what it's all about and maybe you'll pass the good word on to your readers. We believe in viciousness for vice's sake! We believe in smoking for the pure, innocent and obscene pleasure to be derived from it! We're sick of the white republicans of advertising who take a simple, inoffensive cigarette and place it in the pharmacopoeia with smelly drugs and gaudies and what not. We're tired of lustered, formalized, old gold fluky-struck insinuations and shrieks about all the ills that breath, flesh and hair are heir to. We want to be let alone to be wicked, to be unafraid, to enjoy ourselves. We're trying to kid the bunk that is handed out by the advertising palbearers of joy to an innocent public. Don't you think it's time for some of us to rebel?"

I'm still puzzled, after all that eloquence, Henry. It strikes me as being heavy-handed kidding.

Down the street is a treasured colored cook who owns to a dusky husband over in Brooklyn. Her mistress called Viney up at her Harlem hang-out on the latter's day off. It was the week, also, of Florence Mills' spectacular burlesque. "There's a telegram for you, Viney," she said. "Want me to read it?" Viney said yes, and in the usual voice trembling with emotion, the lady of the house confided the bad tidings. Viney's man had been badly hurt in a traffic tieup on the south shore of Long Island. The message had a come-at-once import. But Viney was firm in her refusal to get excited about it. "That's a man's pretty move-out," she said, indifferently. "I ain't going out there tonight, noways. 'Taint often I get to see such a grand layin' out as Florence Mills. I'd miss it if it's to hurry off to Sam'l."

The tabloids reached a height of vulgarity the other day when they printed, with innocent gusto, pictures of the "honeymoon cabin" to be occupied by Mr. Arthur Ramos and his bride, the Standard Oil heiress, Millicent Rogers. In the city room of a newspaper in a smaller American city, such a picture would be thrown out if ever it reached the desk. Certain it is that no regular city editor would give a photographer an assignment to secure such a picture. But the function of the tabloid journal is unique. The lowest curiosity of Peeping Tom is satisfied. Yet these "picture butchers" on the tabloids are good fellows, conservative, quiet, well-mannered, seemingly. Most of them are married (happily) and live in Brooklyn. There is nothing in their private lives to indicate that their daily jobs are rather on a par with that of the white wing who sweeps up Park Row.

In our town: Chas. Ray has rented a flat in the Barclay, down Lexington Avenue way, and expects to spend the winter hereabouts with the missus. . . . Ellis Parker Butler's girl was married over to Flushing the other day. . . . Flo Easton played the folks over at the Metropolitan Opera House Tuesday eve, in "La Gioconda." All expected to see Rosa Ponselle instead, but Flo was voted a successful sub. . . . They do say Mary Pickford's pretty good in "My Best Girl." . . . Helen Hayes in "Coquette" at the Maxine Elliott theatre the other night certainly did herself proud. The folks cheered and stamped their feet.

Harry Hershfield was complaining about a certain Broadwayite who is always moaning about something or other; always making a nuisance of himself.

"He's the only guy I know," said Harry, "who can make a noise buttoning his coat."

MENU HINT

When young folks come in from a skating party or a hike on Sunday afternoon, they are hungry and want a hearty, not dish for "tea." The baked sausage and apple dish might be just the thing to appeal to them. And it is not a "fussy" dish to the housekeeper.

Baked Sausage and Apples or Fried Oysters Whole Wheat Bread
Butter Jam
Fruit Gelatine with Whipped Cream Coffee or Cocoa

Today's Recipes

Baked Sausage and Apples—In the center of roasting pan place as many sausages as you wish. Let them cook for two or three minutes in oven, then pierce each one with a silver fork. Core as many tart apples as you wish and surround the sausages with them. Return to the oven and allow to cook till the sausages and apples are well baked.

Baste frequently with the juice from apples and the grease from the sausages.

Serve on platter with sausages in center and apples surrounding them. Serve hot.

Fried Oysters—Pick over the oysters and wipe them dry with a cloth or absorbent paper. Marinate in French dressing, drain and roll in cracker crumbs, then dip in egg and again roll in crumbs. Or dip in the following batter:

A POSSIBLE CHRISTMAS CAROL IN ROUMANIA

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent.

A Rough Road to Travel
"S-s-s-s-s" hissed Rattler. And that, as everybody knows, in Snake language, means "Yes." "Then folks have always had a thing they grow quite used to it, but I suppose it does seem strange to a Two-Legs to find out there is an eye that cannot be poked out with sticks or blinded if a stone should happen to fly its way. But speaking of being blinded, dear, dear, dear! You have no idea how uncomfortable it is. How I do hate shedding season!"

"That is the second time you have mentioned it," declared the Boy. "What in the world do you mean? You have no feathers. What do you shed?"

"My skin," declared Rattler, promptly. "And a most annoying performance it is, too."

"But Rattler interrupted. "Not I," declared he. "Why?"

"Well, do" hissed the Serpent.

"Tis my way of traveling, and, as you may imagine, mine is no easy road. Sticks and stones can't hurt my bones, they are too well padded with muscles for that, you know, but they will dig off my skin. Constant rubbing will wear away even the toughest. And another reason why covering will not last for a very long time—perhaps you never knew it—I move the scales on the bottom of my body—just push myself over the ground with them. It's good exercise, of course, but hard on the scales. If I only had a few legs (I wouldn't need anything like the number the Centipede has, or Daddy-Long-Legs)—it would help me some. But I haven't. I have to depend on wiggles, and I will say I can go some when I get started. No, sirree! No Serpent worth his salt can make his suit last more than just one season! It is a good thing, too, for if there's one thing I like it's sleek, shiny new clothes."

Living and Loving

BY MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

'Tis Love That Makes the World Go 'Round

"Oh, 'tis love, 'tis love, that makes the world go 'round," they say, and might have added that it also makes a lot of people dizzy. At any rate they can't seem to look at things in quite a normal, balanced way.

Following is a letter from a young man whom the whirl of love has thrown a bit off balance:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a boy 17 who has met a girl a little younger. I love her, but I guess I did wrong in telling her, because she treats me any way she wants to now. Lately she has been having two or three dates every week. When I find it out she says she is sorry, and of course I forgive her because I think maybe she will stop. At times she makes me believe she loves me. "Mrs. Lee, give me the best advice you know because I will feel like a new person when I know she won't go with other boys."

H. L. E."

I'm afraid you won't like my "best advice," H. L. E. You are both too young to go with one person exclusively. Let the little girl go with other boys and you really think a lot of each other, each will appreciate the other all the more when you are together.

The next is from a girl who is worried concerning the petting question:

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl 18. I have gone with boys three years. I started going with a young boy about eight months ago. We seemed to fall in love with each other. I would not allow him to 'pet' until we had gone together about three months. Then I allowed him to kiss me once in a while. About three weeks ago he broke a date. I've never seen him since. Do you think it is because I allowed him to kiss me? There seem so many boys that won't go with a girl unless she will allow 'petting.' What is your advice?"

"WONDERING PEGGY."

KELLYGRAMS

Shipboard Personalities

We have an amateur poet aboard. Experienced travelers assure me that there's invariably one on every ship. This old fellow seems rational and sane in every other way but rels off silly verses full of standard, though meaningful, phrases about the ocean, horizon, sunset, sky and moon. My impression is that he is trying to give mother Nature a hearty endorsement. He has a typewriter and makes an amazing number of carbon copies of each poem for distribution among the passengers. In his trunk are thousands more, many of them elaborately illustrated in water colors by his niece. He has magnanimously offered to place all this reading matter at my disposal. What is it about me, I wonder, that always makes poets, gold mining stock salesmen, and imbecile children, think they have found a kindred spirit?

Dining at a nearby table is a modest but impressive-looking young man with the cleanly-chiselled features of the fellow in a collar advertisement. He might be the rising young vice president of a big New York bank, but it turns out that he is a lumber dealer from Wichita, Kan. He told me last night that when he crossed over to France in 1918 he lost his life-long savings of more than $400, shooting craps and returned from the war penniless. Yet here he is, traveling to Europe in a luxurious stateroom, accompanied by a beautiful and charming wife who looks as if she might set fashion for Fifth avenue. And he probably hasn't even an oil well, but has merely been on the job. My guess is that this boy has made good by honest efforts. America is still the land of opportunity.

One of the clerks in the ship's office—a job evidently corresponding somewhat to that of a hotel—has a mammoth white mustache that looks as if it may have long been his chief hobby. He reminds me so much of Lawrence D'Orsay in "The Earl of Pawtucket," and has such an amusing British accent, that I have been asking him trivial questions every few minutes just to hear him talk. But I fear I am becoming a nuisance for after our last conversation, I heard him remark:

"Decidedly queer chap, poor fellow."

I have just visited the ship's second-class quarters and note that the folks there seem to be having more games, more dancing, more pretty girls and more fun than is to be observed elsewhere.

A prosperous-looking Irishman named Caughey, who bears a striking resemblance to the late Victor Herbert, said to me:

"I long ago discovered that the way to find out what people of various nationalities are really thinking about and get the most interesting contacts with life is to travel second class."

met another girl and been smitten hard. I'd like to bet that the boys who want to "pet" every girl they go with don't finally choose girls who have allowed every man to "pet" them.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Compromise of old certainly has been a god among Republicans. Democrats haven't worshipped him so consistently.

Yet just now, with congress about to meet, the Democrats appear to be a good deal nearer an agreement on the 1928 presidential question than the Republicans.

To say that the former are united on Al Smith would be going too far, but there can't be any doubt that he's the strongest single candidate among them. Republican candidacies are so mixed that it's hard to pick a favorite.

Both parties are split. The Democrats are split wet and dry and the Republicans are split east and west.

There are splits within splits, but those are the main ones. Nobody, I feel sure, but would have agreed less than a year ago, that a wet and dry split was the most impossible of all splits to cement together, and yet it's been done after a fashion—not to perfection, of course, but well enough so that it doesn't gape as wide open as it did.

In comparison, the east and west split has cracked apart until it worries the fixers like sixty.

Who'd have thought that Al Smith, the original wet hope, could be successfully advertised as a first-class dry champion.

Nevertheless, his boosters had the chilled state here to it, and darned if they don't seem to have convinced a lot of people that Al really is an ideal compromise on that issue.

The cement may not stand the strain of a convention, to be sure, but at present, what formidable rival shows against Al? Jim Reed of Missouri comes the nearest to it, but he isn't within a city block of the New Yorker, and the rest are nowhere.

At any rate, there isn't any conversation to the contrary.

On the Republican side of the fence everything is jawing back and forth, and confusion.

Hoover, Hughes, Lowden and Dawes! They keep along about in a bunch—now one a little ahead, apparently; now another. And down in the bottom of their hearts, the managers are afraid of all of 'em—on account of the western farmers. It's no cinch that they won't combine yet on Senator Curtis of Kansas.

Why the east and west can't compromise, if the wets and dries can, is a puzzle, but they don't appear to find it so easy.

Hughes surely can't qualify as an agriculturist. Hoover's so far west that he rates as an easterner. Dawes can't prove that he ever cultivated anything but the money market. Lowden, himself with his lowing herd of sleeping cowboys, evidently hasn't entirely convinced all the dirt farmers.

Still and all, if the Democrats can compromise on Al Smith as a wet-dry, it certainly looks as if the Republicans ought to be able to compromise even on Hughes—as almost anything. And on Curtis without a bit of trouble.

Only, they don't do it.

They will, though.

And the last minute will find the Democrats all shot to blazes.

It always happens that way, except once in a coon's age, and that isn't often enough to make a book on.

How to Achieve Beauty

By KIME, HELENA RUBINSTEIN

SETTING THE STAGE FOR YOUR BEAUTY

Beauty is something you cannot dissect into its different parts. You may have lovely eyes, features like a Grecian goddess, divine figures, but you will not be beautiful in the modern sense of the word until you are well-groomed, attractive in every detail of the whole ensemble of good looks. Beauty is like the proverbial chain that is only as strong as its weakest link. In prior talks I have given you a great deal of advice on your skin, your eyes, your hair, your figure, hands, feet, etc., but I am going to take this week to talk about the little things that count for beauty, the details that are in danger of being forgotten.

Have you ever thought about setting the stage for your beauty? A charming woman is very much like a precious stone which loses much of its value if it is not well set. Every woman owes it to herself to do everything she can to make her own personal setting a constant flattery. The background of your home is extremely important—the colors, the decorations must be of such a kind that they bring out your beauty. See that your drapes, wall papers, upholstery and, above all, the pillows on your davenport, are of flattering shades. I have seen a very beautiful woman fade into complete insignificance against the gilded, glittering, elaborate room she had arranged for herself. Remember, always, that your surroundings are only the accompaniment and you yourself are the song. You do not carry your house around with you, but everyone who sees you on the street sees you in your clothes. The same thing applies to your costumes that I just said about your physical surroundings—be sure that they are not more vivid than yourself. Make them compliment your eyes, your hair, your figure, but do not allow them to be elaborate and conspicuous in a way that makes the onlooker think only of your clothes and forget to look at the person who is in them.

Whatever you wear, be that it be a simple dress, or a gown, or a hat, or a pair of shoes, be sure that there is no little detail that spoils the effect. The delicate woman must have no hard lines, the outdoor type no flimsy dresses for street wear. The striking, colorful, Oriental type should not delve into pastel shades.

Then dress to enhance your figure. The woman who is stout must not wear a skirt that is tight, short and wrapped around her; for her the uneven hemline is good. Diagonal lines or long lines from the neck to the hem are always slenderizing. A large waistline by straps or drapes hanging from the shoulder below the waist. The tall, slender woman is the one who can have bands and borders on her costumes.

In my talk today on "Setting the Stage for Your Beauty," I have merely hinted at a few of the details that are important in establishing your beauty. My next talk will take up "The Flattering Effect of Costume Jewelry."

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDAH MCGLOONE GIBSON DEBTORS

Do we realize how often we neglect the debts we owe to our friends and those we love? We hear that someone is shut in for a little while or that she has suffered some grief or even illness. We say to ourselves, "We must visit that friend tomorrow."

We do not go today for fear of a meeting that the making of a numerous charity dinners which are always with us; a luncheon at which we will discuss the work being done by the Young Women's Christian Association and sometime this afternoon we have promised ourselves to get over to see that little woman whose child is so ill. She probably needs milk and other necessities for the child and some money will not come amiss.

In the meantime the illness of our friend slips our mind. We do not go either the next day or the next week.

Of course, we know that our friend is materially well cared for. We know that she has money enough to supply her wants, but what of the heart-longing and hunger that gave her a feeling that she is forgotten, that we do not love her any more, that all our protestations of friendship were but idle speech.

We do not discharge our debts of this kind to our friends. We grow lax and thoughtless; we even while pluming ourselves on our kindness and devotion to duty.

I was reminded of this the other day when, after a very busy week, I went to visit a friend, a woman whom I love much, and I made the usual excuse of philanthropic errands, of days filled with work and she calls upon me from those in physical need. She said, in rather a pathetic voice, "I think I have learned, while I have been lying here that there is a duty we owe to our equals. I do not think I will ever let the material needs of the stranger come before."

That thought has stuck. Because a person is not hungry for bread, because a person has a beautiful home and every material comfort is no reason why, when that person becomes a shut-in, we should not show that we remember and think of her daily.

All these people probably are so near and dear to us we have a feeling that they should read our minds and rest secure in the knowledge that they have a place in our hearts.

Each one of us knows how delighted and happy she has been to receive a little note from a friend or a few flowers or some little attention when she was feeling that the world was upside down.

This is not sentimentality. It is absolutely doing those little things, showing those little thoughtfulnesses that make life worth living, both for ourselves and for others.

A few weeks ago some woman wrote me an old rhyme: "We have careful thought for the stranger, And smiles for the sometimes guest, But for our own the bitter tone, Though we love our own the best."

Everyone knows that that is true, but I would go a little further and ask for thoughtfulness instead of forgetfulness of those people with whom we associate every day and who are "our equals."

Memo: If "charity begins at home" then thoughtfulness and sympathy should be first dispensed among our friends and those we love.

Central Gridders Meet Springfield Thursday

ELEVEN PLAYERS TO CLOSE SCHOLASTIC FOOTBALL CAREERS

History Of Meetings Gives Reaper City Important Edge

Eleven members of Central High School's football squad will be writing their final scholastic gridiron careers when the Blue and White rings down the curtain of the 1927 football season in the annual Thanksgiving Day tilt with Springfield High School at South Side Field, Springfield, Thursday at 2 p. m.

Captain Bob Morton, Doak, Higgins—names that have been associated with Xenia football for several years, are among those who will don "moleskins" for the last time. And it will be the last act for many others.

Rakoff and Clemons have apparently concluded their participation in football games as both have injuries that will probably keep them out of the final contest.

Records of Xenia and Springfield this season compare favorably. Springfield has won four games and lost the same number, having defeated Cedarville, Lima, South Dayton, Steele and Findlay, while losing to Columbus West, Dayton Stivers, Toledo Scott and Hamilton. The Reaper City team has scored 102 points to its opponents' 114.

Central has a similar record, having won three games, lost three games, tied three games and scored twenty-nine points to opponents ninety-two. The Thanksgiving Day tussle will decide which eleven is to rise above the 500 per cent average and which team is to wind up its season with more defeats than victories.

History of Xenia-Springfield football games since 1911 follows: 1911—Xenia, 0; Springfield, 29. 1912—Xenia, 0; Springfield, 95. 1913—No game. 1914—Xenia, 10; Springfield, 15. 1915—Xenia, 0; Springfield, 47. 1916—Xenia, 0; Springfield, 36. 1917—No game. 1918—Xenia, 7; Springfield, 48. 1919—Xenia, 0; Springfield, 49. 1920—Xenia, 0; Springfield, 31. 1921—Xenia, 24; Springfield, 0. 1922—Xenia, 20; Springfield, 0. 1923—Xenia, 0; Springfield, 33. 1924—Xenia, 6; Springfield, 27. 1925—No game. 1926—Xenia, 0; Springfield, 7.

ROTARY ANNS HEAR DARLINGTON SPEAK

"Rotary Anns" were privileged to attend the weekly luncheon meeting of the Xenia Rotary Club, Tuesday at the Elks' Club, when Attorney C. L. Darlington, former commander of the Ohio American Legion, told of his trip to Europe to attend the Legion convention.

Attorney Darlington described his visit in detail and told many amusing incidents and interesting facts in connection with the Good Will Tour of Legion officials.

D. W. Cherry presided at the meeting. Attorney Darlington's talk was the only feature of the program.

HEARING SET

Petition filed by B. B. Stackhouse and other property owners for the construction of a single county ditch in Silvercreek and Jefferson Twp., to be known as the Lucas ditch, is scheduled to be given a hearing by County Commissioners at their regular meeting Wednesday.

Commissioners viewed the route along which it is proposed to construct the ditch Monday.

WILL PRACTICE

Members of the Xenia Merchants football squad will hold meetings and practice sessions at Washington Park Wednesday and Friday evenings at 7 o'clock. All members are requested to be present without fail.

ANTIOCH'S TWO COURT TEAMS WILL PLAY TWELVE CONTESTS

Twelve games, seven at home and five away, including one tentative date, appear on the 1927-28 basketball schedule arranged jointly for the "A" and "B" divisions of Antioch College, as announced by Coach Merrill Dawson.

"A" division's court squad opens the season against Cedarville College at Cedarville December 2, after playing the annual alumni game November 26. This division will then play two more games, one away and one at home, before turning the schedule over to "B" division's cage quintet.

"B" division will play five straight games, two at Yellow Springs and three on foreign courts, beginning January 10 when Capital University of Columbus comes to Antioch.

Division "A" plays out the remainder of the schedule, opening with the University of Dayton at Antioch February 15. Another contest will be played at home the following week after which the season ends at Bluffton February 25.

Coach Dawson faces the task of building two separate basketball teams, but has at least three letter men back in each division and some fairly promising material. Practice is already under way for Division A as fourteen candidates answered the initial call last week. Division A is without a captain but a leader is expected to be elected before the opening contest.

O'Connor, guard, and Toomire and Wilcox, forwards, are the letter men available for this division's team. Fife, a guard, who is suffering from an injured knee, is another veteran who may also be available.

Captain Teegarden and Bostwick, forwards, and Seaman, guard, are letter men for Division B but several of the veterans in this division are on scholastic probation and it is uncertain at this time whether they will be available.

The 1927-28 schedule follows: Division "A": November 26—Alumni game. December 2—Cedarville away. December 6—Bliss Business College, Columbus, at home. (tentative).

EAGLES WILL HONOR XENIA PHYSICIAN

Urged on by the success which attended their recent drive for a large Armistice Day class, members of Xenia Aerie, No. 1689, Fraternal Order of Eagles, are putting forth strenuous efforts in behalf of the proposed "Dr. Frank M. Chambliss" class with the hope of making the coming initiation even larger.

This class will honor Dr. Chambliss, the Aerie physician, whose efforts have assured the success of the annual winter membership campaign.

Handsome prizes are being offered by the Ohio organization department of the order to the individuals signing the greatest number of applicants. At present, Dr. Chambliss is leading other members of the local Aerie.

The class honoring the physician will be initiated Sunday, December 11 at 3:30 p. m.

EYE MEN TO MEET

Optometrists from Montgomery, Darke, Greene, Preble, Clark and Miami Counties and the city of Middletown will gather at the Grey Manor in Dayton Wednesday evening for a business session and dinner. The optometrists will be accompanied by their wives and special entertainment has been arranged.

Dr. S. C. Philbrook of Piqua is the state governor and the county chairmen include: Dr. E. B. Elliott, Dayton; Dr. W. S. Niswonger, Greenville; Dr. L. A. Wagner, Xenia; Dr. H. R. Spitzer, Eaton, who is state secretary; Dr. H. S. Wade, Springfield; and Dr. Harry Brakeman, of Middletown. Dr. E. O. Sterzer of Dayton is the state president.

WILL BUILD SCHOOL
IN YELLOW SPRINGS
ON DONATED TRACT

Selection of a sixteen-acre tract of land given the village by the late John Bryan, eccentric millionaire, ten years ago, as a site for the new school building to be erected in Yellow Springs, was made Monday night by the village school board and the Miami Twp. school board.

Walker and Norwich, Dayton architects, were chosen to draw up plans for the structure.

Selection of the building site was made at a joint meeting of the two school boards after the village board had engaged Walker and Norwich as architects in connection with the remodeling of the present eight-room school building on Dayton St.

Both boards sponsored bond issues, which were approved by the village and township voters at the November 8 election, making funds available for the construction and remodeling projects.

FORTY AND EIGHT MEMBERS TO ENTERTAIN HOME CHILDREN

Annual Thanksgiving party sponsored by the Grand Vulture of Ohio, Forty and Eight Society, to be held at the O. S. and S. O. Home Saturday, is expected to attract members and their wives and families from all parts of the state. Seventy-five delegates from Columbus alone are expected to attend.

Chief among the scheduled attractions will be a football game between the Home School and Washington C. H. High School Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Admission will be free and the public is invited to attend. Maneuvers by the cadet band will be a feature.

The Home eleven has played seven games this season, winning four games, losing two and playing one tie game. Dr. Dave Reese, Denison, will referee the contest with Paul Fuller as umpire and Paul Turnbull as headlinesman.

A dress parade of the cadet battalion, which will be held either Saturday afternoon following the football game, or Sunday morning, depending upon the weather, will be reviewed by Colonel E. S. Thacher and staff of the 134th Artillery.

In the evening an entertainment and dance in the auditorium is being planned. A motion picture show will probably be shown with other vaudeville acts, followed by dancing to music furnished by Clarence Jeffries and his orchestra.

Many of the visitors will return home Saturday night but others will stay over for a business meeting of the Grand Vulture and the Child Welfare Committee of the society, which is scheduled for Sunday morning.

Pelham St. George Bissell, New York, chief de chemin de fer of the Forty and Eight, will also be present, marking his first visit into Ohio. The meetings will be in charge of A. E. Laies, 238 Dakota Ave., Columbus, grand chef de gare.

LICENSE DELAY KEEPS PAIR SINGLE

PASSAIC, N. J. Ignazio Fallace, 72, walked into city hall and applied for a license to marry his seventy-three-year-old sweetheart. He was disconcerted when he learned that he would have to wait 72 hours before the license could be delivered to him, but he told the clerk to fill it out. Three days later Ignazio appeared again at city hall and requested the clerk to tear up the license. His fiancée had too much time to think the matter over and decided she didn't like him any more, he announced.

decorated for the occasion was thrown open Thursday, November 17 to guests from 2 until 10 o'clock. Miss Ferguson, one of Xenia's popular and talented young ladies, wore a handsome Parisian evening gown of gold cloth embroidered in gold roses.

Those in the receiving line for the evening were Miss Ferguson, Mrs. Ferguson, Rev. Hutchinson and Mrs. Squire Buster, of Wilmington. Those who assisted the hostess in dispensing the hospitality of the evening were Mrs. John R. Moore, Mrs. William Rogers and Mrs. Lester Lane.

Miss Mattie Ann Thomas presided at the punch bowl.

The program for the evening was rendered by Miss Jennie Green who gave an instrumental number and solos by Mrs. Henrietta Hall, Mrs. John Samuels and Mr. William Rickman.

Miss Ferguson sang several numbers and gave many inspiring and instructive talks on her visits to Germany, Belgium, England, Holland and France. The guests, including quite a number of out of town friends, enjoyed the many delightful events of the afternoon and evening.

The closing of the seventh annual conference of the Community Bible School was held Sunday. Visitors were present from Xenia, Dayton, Jamestown and Columbus. The school was organized in 1920 with Mrs. Hattie Spencer as president and in recognition of her faithful service she was presented a seven-seal diploma.

Mothers Mary Roman, Clay Grigsby, Fannie Garrett and Sarah Child were promoted to the fifth year study. In the children's department, Lila Wills was promoted from the Cradle Roll to the Primary Department. Mrs. Laura Harris is president of the children's department. Following the promotion Mrs. R. E. Harrison, evangelist of Hopkinsville, Ky., delivered a stirring address on "Sin."

WHY NOT IN AMERICA?

We quote an eminent editorial writer as follows:

"Great Britain intends to protect ignorant investors against get-rich-quick stock salesmen and other schemers. Peddling stocks from door to door is to be stopped, selling stocks through the mail restricted and watched. The oil, real estate and mining schemes that rob investors in this country would not be possible in Great Britain."

According to an authority, there is a "sucker list" of 600,000 names in America—and, perhaps, a million more who are easy subjects for persuasion.

There is little excuse for victims of this class here. Dayton's Building Associations pay 6 per cent interest and give security that is dependable under all circumstances.

DETROIT'S NEW MAYOR IS RATED AS POLITICAL PARADOX

BORN IN DETROIT IN 1862 AND EDUCATED IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS
CHAMPION SPELLER AND LEADER IN ATHLETIC ACTIVITIES
MUNICIPAL NEWS REPORTER AND CITY EDITOR DETROIT PAPER

John C. Lodge

MEMBER OF CITY COUNCIL MOST OF HIS LIFE
SERVED AS ACTING MAYOR FOR NINE YEARS
MAYOR-ELECT NEVER MADE A CAMPAIGN SPEECH

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to Gazette

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 22.—Most people think that President Coolidge invented silence. The fact is that John Lodge's patent on it ran out before Coolidge was born.

Lodge himself is about as interesting personally as most quiet men are. It is his career that strikes the imagination.

John Lodge, elected mayor of Detroit over John W. Smith, wet candidate, is sixty-five years old. He has held office nearly all of his working life. Yet he never has made a campaign promise, never has had an organization. And seldom, indeed, has he ever failed to receive the most votes of any one on the ticket.

He has risen from a municipal news reporter to the mayoralty of the fourth city of the United States after long years of service, in a public career without a blemish, with the confidence of the people.

Was Newspaper Man.
At one time he was city editor of a Detroit newspaper. When he got the job the city council passed a resolution of best wishes.

The outstanding characteristic of John Lodge is the confidence the people have placed in him during a long life in the public eye. If attacks have been made on him by the opposition, in desperate efforts to stave off inevitable defeat, Lodge has remained silent.

The most that could be gotten out of him in the greatest of pressure and attack has been that if the people wanted his opponent they would vote for him, and if they wanted him instead, they would vote for him. And from this fortified position no political bombardment ever has been able to dislodge him.

Now, why should such a quiet man have a hold on the people, and why should they elect him mayor of their city after a lifetime in city council, during which time he served as acting mayor of the city for something like nine years?

What is there about the personality of such a man? That's the thing that is interesting.

Was an Athlete
John Lodge was born in Detroit, August 12, 1862. He was educated in the public schools of the city and in the old Michigan Military Academy at Orchard Lake, approximately twenty-five miles from Detroit. At this school he won a reputation for soldierly bearing and aptitude. He was a champion speller and a leader in athletic and scholastic activities.

Lodge was a left-hander and played first base on the ball team. When the old Detroit Athletic club was formed, he played on its team, and in 1892 went to Washington with the team to play for the championship in its class.

Lodge was the son of a doctor—Dr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Lodge. Perhaps his silence is a heritage of the traditions of the medical profession.

against unethical publicity and perhaps his military education taught him to serve with silence and obedience to command.

Regarded as "Regular Fellow"
He always has been a "regular fellow," enjoying the sports of a clubman. Lodge never has been "dry," although many of the dries in their efforts to defeat the present mayor, John W. Smith, came nearly defeating Lodge by their attacks on Smith.

While Lodge took no part in the wet and dry fight which Mayor Smith took up with characteristic fighting spirit, after the election was over Lodge showed his independence of action, which has characterized his entire career, by stating in his thanks to the voters:

"There were two things injected into this campaign and called issues that I never recognized as issues. If the people of this city wanted Mr. John W. Smith for their mayor, they would vote for him; and if they wanted me for their mayor, they would vote for me."

"This wet and dry matter was dragged into the campaign. It never was an issue. We can have orderly law enforcement without asking either the aid or advice of the professional dries, with the emphasis on 'professional.' There will be positively no 'snooping.'"

"As to the other terrible thing that was dragged in as an 'issue,' the religious question, I hate intolerance, and there are thousands of Detroiters who know that I do."

Lodge is a prominent Mason. Lindbergh's Uncle
Lodge never has been married. He makes his home with an unmarried sister. He never has been a "ladies' man." He is a great uncle of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

Political opponents declared in the campaign that there had been Hollywood rumors whisper that the stork is on its way to the home of Eleanor Boardman, screen actress, and her director-husband, King Vidor.

XENIAN'S AUTO IS STOLEN THIRD TIME

For the third time in six weeks, G. Martin, N. Galloway St., has had his automobile stolen. Cautious as the result of having his Chevrolet sedan taken while parked on Cincinnati streets in the last few weeks, Martin put the auto in a paid parking space in that city last Thursday night. He called for the machine Saturday morning and found the car gone. An attendant at the auto park told Martin that a man of the same description drove the machine away early Friday morning, and was not detained since the attendant thought the other man was Martin. No trace of the car has since been found. The auto was recovered in a short time the other two times it was stolen.

Leopard Coat Causes Beating
BROOKLYN, N. Y.—A Brooklyn man is being held on $500.00 bail by Judge Golden because he mistook a woman in a leopard skin coat for his wife. The man had a quarrel with his wife and she walked out in her new coat. He followed her with a stick in his hand and pretty soon saw a woman wearing a leopard skin coat. He brought his stick into play. When overpowered by a patrolman, he discovered it wasn't his wife at all. "I am awfully sorry," he told the judge. "I thought she was my wife."

Norris a Born Rebel; Stuns Party Regulars

Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska may enter the presidential lists under the Progressive banner, or may be drafted by the G. O. P. He's a rabid insurgent, and has even worked to defeat members of his own party.

(International Illustrated News)

This is another in the series of close-ups of presidential possibilities, written by Fred L. Lindelton, Washington correspondent for the International Illustrated News. In these articles Mr. Lindelton discusses personalities rather than politics.

By FRED L. LINDELTON

International Illustrated New Staff Correspondent

Party regularity doesn't mean a thing to Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska. Norris is registered as a Republican. But he's Republican in name only.

Norris's sense of decency was outraged when he learned of the spending of millions in the Pennsylvania Senatorial primaries last year. Whereupon he made all the "regulars" shudder when he invaded the Keystone State and fought like the dickens to elect a Democrat!

There's some talk that Norris may head a Progressive ticket. Others opine that, if the presidential nominations were offered him by the G. O. P., the prize would make him turn regular and stay of the rebel band of Senators. And from that time on, he incessantly harried the administration.

Norris was born in Indiana in 1861. He started life on a farm then turned to law. He moved to Nebraska and became prosecuting attorney, judge and Congressman. Norris was married twice—first in 1890 to Miss Pluma Lashley who died in 1901. In 1903 he married Miss Ella Leonard. They were three children by his first marriage.

Norris inherited the toga of Sen-

PLAIN FURNITURE ADDS TO FLOOR AREA

By HILDA HUNT

In the present vogue for the simply furnished room of early American or peasant influence we are eliminating elaboration of both furniture and wall space to gain a greater floor area. Built-in, rather than built-out, wall cupboards and shelf groups are now the order of the day, with only such furniture as is necessary to convenience and comfort. Many a parlor piece the housewife used to cherish has gone to the antique shop around the corner, or to the furniture grave. In the process of eliminating the old-fashioned parlor in favor of the combination living and dining room, perhaps it is this elimination that has brought about the vogue for the simpler furnishing. At any rate, the less furniture that goes into the present day better.

The room pictured above is a good example of the peasant influence in the sun parlor dining room. A china closet cut into the wall not only saves space, but gives the drop leaf table the effect of a sideboard when folded against the wall. For dining the table is naturally drawn to the center of the room. Aside from the ladder-backed chairs that go with this table, a large wicker chair, a peasant ladder back cushioned sofa, and a reading table, make up the room. Built into the wall opposite the china closet is a small bookcase. Floor lamps with shades to match the door and window curtains, and an inverted ceiling light, furnish the lighting effects. It will be seen at a glance that the room depends largely upon its color scheme for "dressing up." Bright, cheerful colors are needed, for which gingham was chosen. In this particular room, which had sea green walls, a brown and melon check was used with splendid effect. In the window curtains and some of the cushions it was combined with a one-tone melon to match the lighter color of the check. As the glass doors leading to the porch were very high, the curtain lines were broken in three parts by shirring to give the effect of shortening and a better "tied-together" appearance of the whole room.

The Photoplay Magazine gold medal for the best film released during 1926 has been awarded to Paramount-Famous-Lasky, for its production of "Beau Geste" according to an announcement in the December issue of Photoplay Magazine.

The medal was created by Photoplay to encourage the making of better pictures. The gold medal picture of the year was decided by votes from readers of the magazine, and it is the only award in all of motion picture fans themselves. "Beau Geste" was adapted

Money Love
By BEATRICE BURTON Author of "SALLY'S SHOULDERS" "HONEY LOU" "THE HOLLYWOOD GIRL" ETC.

READ THIS FIRST: LILY LEXINGTON is the spoiled only daughter of the CYRUS LEXINGTONS. Her mother's fondest dreams are realized when she becomes engaged to a rich bachelor named STALEY DRUMMOND, and the wedding date is set for June. The day after Staley proposes Lily goes down town to meet her friend, SUE CAIN, and sees a man watching her through the crowd. She is instantly attracted by his face, and then she sees that he is a taxi driver. But moved by some sudden impulse, she jumps into the cab and is driven home. She learns that his name is PAT FRANCE and that he owns his cab in a company headed by his friend, ROY JETTERSON. He says he is going to sell it to help finance a piston ring that he has invented and wants to put on the market.

As the days go by Lily realizes that she is in love with him. About the time she makes up her mind she cannot marry Staley, her mother announces the engagement, and she resigns herself to the idea of her wedding on June tenth. Pat evidently has sold the cab in the meantime, for he disappears from the streets.

Then about three weeks before the wedding, Lily goes out to the back yard of her home and finds him cleaning their automobile. He is Mrs. Lexington's new chauffeur, he tells Lily with a grin, and adds that he took the job simply to be near her for the few weeks before her marriage. But Lily begins to be very uncertain about that marriage once more. She is in love with Pat, and finally tells him that if he would marry her she would jilt Staley and cheerfully be a poor man's wife. Pat says she is out out to be poor, and takes her to his own humble little home to meet his family, who are rather shy before the rich Miss Lexington. Staley finds out about their meetings and he and Lily quarrel over Pat, but Staley refuses to let her break the engagement. Then Mrs. Lexington tells Pat he will have to wait on table, as well as drive the car. Lily overhears her talking to him one morning from the head of the stairs, and breathlessly waits to hear the answer.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER XIX
Lily crept down to the landing and peered into the lower hall. Pat was facing her mother and slowly shaking his dark, handsome head. There was a small smile on his lips, but his blue eyes were serious and watchful.

"No, I couldn't wait on anybody's table, Mrs. Lexington," he said, in his deep voice that always stirred Lily almost as much as his touch stirred her. "You hired me to keep your automobile in order and drive it. I didn't mind washing the window yesterday, or cleaning up the back yard the day before. But I certainly am not going to carry soup and fish around a table."

Mrs. Lexington's chin, that she always carried up lest she get a double chin, went up a fraction of an inch higher. "It would be only for a couple of days, Pat," she said to him, coldly. "Just until I get someone to take Carrie's place."

He shook his head once again. "I can't take Carrie's place even for two days. I'm no woman to be working around the kitchen, Mrs. Lexington. . . I don't want to work around anything but automobiles anyway. If it was just work I wanted I could have gone into my own Dad's grocery store."

"I'm not interested in your history, Pat!" Mrs. Lexington cut in, sharply. "You'll either learn to wait on table tonight or go right now."

To Lily's amazement, Pat did not answer. She saw a dark red flush go over his face and neck, and he gave a little laugh and walked out of the house. The front door closed gently behind him.

She ran down the stairs, "Mother, she cried, "That's the terrible thing to do—to make Pat wait on table! It's a dreadful thing for you to do!"

"It's nothing to be ashamed of—to wait on table. It's good, honest work," said Mrs. Lexington, as if she were making a speech on capital and labor. "When a man takes a job he ought to be willing to do anything he can to hold that job." She sailed into the little writing room at the end of the hall with a crisp rustling of her linen skirts, and sat down at the telephone.

Lily followed her, furiously indignant.

"Mother, you can't do a thing like this to Pat!" she went on. "You know he's in love with me, poor fellow. And he knows Staley's coming to dinner, and that he'd have to wait on him—I hate Pat to leave us this way. What will he think of us?"

Her mother set down the telephone that she had picked up and turned upon her. Her face was scarlet and her eyes were like points of steel. She smacked the telephone table smartly with the flat of her jeweled hand.

"Do you suppose I care, for one minute what my chauffeur thinks of me?" she demanded, her voice shaking with rage. "Do you think I care how he leaves this house? All I care about is that he does leave before you lose your senses entirely, Lily Lexington! Running out of the house last night with that fellow that you know nothing about! Heaven knows where you were with him—and heaven alone knows what ails you lately!"

Lily told her, and all the anger

above it. "I suppose he wants to leave everything in order, or maybe he's packing his clothes!"

Then, suddenly, she wheeled around from the window and flew to turn on the water in her bathtub. . . . She must see him before he went! She must make up her mind what to do now, before he was gone!

In record time she bathed, brushed her perfect teeth, combed the golden, fluffy masses of her hair, and hurried into the soft silk underthings that she took from a satchel lined drawer that scented them delicately like flower petals.

In the closet was an orchid and pink silk sports dress that her mother had bought for her troupe—seam—of those simple hand-made little dresses that French women make by hand and sell to women like Mrs. Lexington for exorbitant sums of money.

With only a second's hesitation Lily took it from its silk-padded hanger and put it on. On the closet shelf was a folded square of white tissue paper. Within it, Lily knew was her real lace wedding veil just back from the dry cleaning shop.

Her "going away" hat of pale grey straw lined with shell-pink was in its perfumed box. The suit to match it hung in a dust-proof bag.

A new pale gray leather suitcase with her initials on it in sterling silver, stood on the floor. Beside it was a little dressing-case that matched it.

The clothes closet and the big luxuriously-furnished bedroom were filled with clothes and gloves and shoes and ornaments to make her a lovely bride for Staley Drummond in three weeks' time.

Some flowers that had come from him were in an open box on her dressing table. Agnes or her mother must have brought them up while she was taking her bath.

She put her face down into them—lilies of the valley and white roses. Flowers for a bride—for a rich man's bride.

Then she laid them down and looked at them with thoughtful eyes. . . . It came to her that she would be just like them if she married Staley. Expensive and as carefully cared for as they had been cared for and tended in a hot house.

But she didn't want a hot house life. . . . She knew it now. She wanted the freedom and the freshness of ordinary happy married life with a man she loved. With Pat France.

If she had been a writer or a poet she would have told herself that what she wanted to be was a common garden variety wife. Common and gay as a yellow dandelion or a sunflower.

But Lily was not even a great reader. She had been too busy all her life enjoying herself to read about other people's joys and disappointments.

She only knew, in some vague half-formed way, that the flowers represented the life she was leaving without a regret—without a single regret.

"Even if I'm poor I reckon it won't be so hard to bear—if I have Pat," she told herself, going quietly down the back stairs of the house.

But she knew nothing about being poor. The only poverty she had even seen was in picture shows. And so she went through the yard and up the stairs to the room above the garage with the lightest heart that ever had stirred in her breast.

She knocked on his door and went in. She had made up her mind, completely and happily, at least!

SINCLAIR CHARGED WITH CONTEMPT

MAY CARRY TAX CUT TO CONGRESS

DEMOCRATS REFUSE TO ACCEPT AMOUNT SET BY COMMITTEE

Minority Faction Is Fighting For Slice
Of $300,000,000

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Temporarily checked in the house ways and means committee in their drive for a huge tax reduction program, Democratic leaders today laid plans to carry the fight to the floor of congress.

Despite the fact that an overwhelming majority of the committee fixed $250,000,000 as the limit of tax reduction to be recommended to congress, Democratic members held that this was a forced compromise and that they are not bound to support it.

"I predict the tax reduction bill will carry a greater figure when it leaves the house, and the senate will cut taxes at least $300,000,000," said Rep. John Garner, (D) of Texas, minority leader on the committee.

"This figure represents the judgment of the committee, based upon an examination of treasury figures of the future probable surpluses," said Rep. William Green, (R) of Iowa, chairman.

The adoption of a limiting figure "but $250,000,000 more than was fixed by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon occasioned surprise in political circles. Two Republican members of the committee have within the last week declared that they favored a $300,000,000 cut. Garner charged that they "quit cold under the lash of political patronage."

With the adoption of the limiting figure, the committee also decided to distribute the tax cuts to corporations paying income tax, automobile buyers who must pay a three per cent purchase tax, and to consider reduction or abolition of admission and club dues taxes.

The committee at the same time, rejected the recommendation of the treasury to adjust the middle brackets of the individual income tax and to repeal the federal inheritance tax.

The committee also voted to abolish the tax on cereal beverages, which yields but $150,000 a year. This tax had been applied at the request of Lincoln C. Andrews, former dry "czar," as an aid to prohibition enforcement, but the new treasury enforcement regime told the committee that the tax was no help and should be abolished.

Among the proposals being considered by the committee for the final draft of the tax reduction bill, it was learned, are: reduction of the corporation tax 13 1/2 to 11 1/2 per cent, total $172,000,000; reduction of the auto tax fifty per cent, total $35,000,000; with the remainder applied to the relief of small corporations theater and other admissions under $3.00; and club dues. The war stamp taxes would remain.

Rep. Garner made known that he has proposed a new basis for taxing income of corporations between $2,000 and $15,000. He would put a five per cent tax on earnings of $2,000 to $7,000; seven per cent tax on earnings, $7,000 to $12,000; nine per cent tax on earnings, $12,000 to $15,000, and the general rate, now 13 1/2 per cent, would apply to corporations earning above $15,000 annually.

The estate tax, which has been the subject of a lone fight, failed to receive the committee's recommendation for repeal by a six to seventeen vote, while the proposal to adjust the intermediate brackets lost, two to twenty-one.

Previous to the committee's action, under Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills made a plea to hold the tax cut to $250,000,000 on the ground that a further tax cut might cause a treasury deficit.

GREATER NEW YORK NEARS TEN MILLION

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Creation of a new "metropolitan district" under the sanction of the United States Census Bureau, today had given "New York proper" a population of 9,500,000, according to the Merchants Association of New York. The new district embraces a radius of within forty miles of the City Hall as compared with the old ten-mile radius.

SAPIRO PRAISES FORD'S COURAGE

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 22.—Aaron Sapiro, of Chicago, who sued Henry Ford for a million dollars alleging libel, now admires Ford "because when faced with his enormous falsehood against the Jews he had enough strength to overcome his pride and apologize." This was Sapiro's message to 2,000 Jews who assembled in the B'Nai Abraham Synagogue last night. His statements were loudly applauded.

GRAND JURY INDICTS SEVEN

WOMEN BRIDGE BUILDERS SOON BE COMMON

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Women bridge builders and mining engineers will not be uncommon fifty years hence, in the opinion of Wynona Mallory, 24, a member of the technical service department of the Western Electric Company's plant here.

Miss Mallory, a bit peeved over her sisters' "interior complex" which began with Eve in the Garden of Eden, believes all woman need to attain success at structural engineering jobs is—a chance. "Men aver," says Miss Mallory, "that it is useless expenditure of money to give a girl a scientific education because she gets married shortly after being graduated and her knowledge is never put to any practical use. This fallacy has been allowed to go unchallenged too long.

"Women hesitate to attempt success at science simply because they underestimate their own intelligence. They have been told for so long that the home and hearth is her true sphere that she is expected to fail in any other work. If women would fight for a chance to prove themselves in science as a mother fights for her child, this nonsense about boys having all the brains would be stamped ridiculous."

Miss Mallory, who graduated in 1923 from the engineering school at the University of Kansas, advocates the "inferiority complex" in women the substitution of structural toys for dolls among baby girls.

U. S. SUPREME COURT SPEEDS UP BUSINESS TO SET EXAMPLE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The United States Supreme Court has decided to become a model for other courts in response to a nationwide demand to end the law's delays, close observers of the court declared today.

Laying aside other business, the court in one full swoop rejected seventy-seven petitions for writs of review and virtually cleaned its docket of these petitions.

Chief Justice Taft, it was pointed out, had indicated a determination to decide these petitions promptly, since this method often is used by litigants merely to secure a delay in the final disposition of their case.

The court also rejected four petitions for reviews, because the lawyers made their briefs too long.

Under authority of congress, the court has established rules prescribing methods of stating petitions for writs of certiorari. One petition, the court pointed out, was fifty-one pages long, and was accompanied by a brief seventy-two pages long and an appendix of ninety pages.

STRIKING MINERS LIVE COMFORTABLY IN UNION BARRACKS

Apparently Happy In Cramped Quarters In Mine Districts

RUSSELLTON, Pa., Nov. 22.—The striking western Pennsylvania miners may be destitute, but there has been no intense suffering thus far, and prospects are they will spend a relatively comfortable winter.

This was the impression gathered here today when the writer, accompanied by Philip Murray, international vice-president of the United Mine Workers of America, visited this community where the miners are living in barracks constructed by the union. Approximately 155 families are in the barracks, and 250 others have made their homes in halls, churches, and private dwellings.

The barracks, single-story affairs twenty feet wide and 120 feet long, are constructed of single boards structure contains twenty rooms ten feet wide and twelve feet long. Each row is built on posts and is raised off the ground.

Each family of six or less is given two rooms as their "home." A family of twelve or less rates three rooms, while more than that, particularly if there are grown children, warrants a four room "house."

There are no bathrooms in the barracks. Water is obtained from three wells and a spring. Sanitation facilities have been provided a short distance from the living quarters.

But to the miners and their families appear not to be mindful of the time they have been unemployed. All of them have been out of work eight months, and many have been on strike two years or more.

Little children playing about the temporary houses are full of smiles and appear to be cheerful. John Rajak, president of the local union, said the miners do not worry over the outcome of the strike.

"The miner is different from the average man," said Rajak. "Today when a bridge over a river is a mile west of here today, ran over a man and killed him, E. V. Mohler, conductor on the train, dismounted to find that the victim was his father, George Mohler, 80. The deceased was a well known farmer in this vicinity and it is believed that he discovered the train approaching him too late to escape it."

The men, however, are keenly interested in strike conditions throughout the nation. One of the first questions asked Murray on arrival here was an inquiry into general conditions.

The miners place every confidence in their leaders, and display the implicitness of their faith in them by seldom grumbling over the method of living, or questioning the procedure toward the ending of the strike, Murray explained.

KILLS OWN FATHER

LANCASTER, O., Nov. 22.—When a Pennsylvania work train, backing over a bridge one mile west of here today, ran over a man and killed him, E. V. Mohler, conductor on the train, dismounted to find that the victim was his father, George Mohler, 80. The deceased was a well known farmer in this vicinity and it is believed that he discovered the train approaching him too late to escape it.

AERONAUTICS AGE DAWNING IN NATION DIRECTOR ASSERTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The "aeronautics age" is dawning in the United States.

In the near future thousands of luxuriously equipped airplanes will travel on schedule over charted and illuminated air routes.

Airplane taxis will await the call of tired out busy business men. Private aircraft, safe as automobiles, will sweep the skies.

Painting this remarkable picture of aeronautics of the near future, Clarence M. Young, director of aeronautics of the commerce department, today declared if at first lagged in development of aerial navigation, the country now is moving ahead at top speed to build one of the world's finest "commercial air marines."

High points in Young's official report to Secretary of Commerce Hoover include:

"Airplane construction in the year just closed in this country was valued at more than $20,000,000, a sixty per cent gain over 1925.

"Airplanes of new design are replacing the war surplus type, which have been doing service up to the present.

"New air routes are being charted in all parts of the country; cities vie with each other in the construction of improved air ports.

"It is estimated that by the end of 1928 a thousand airports will be in operation, a large percentage municipal.

"Numerous cities and towns are becoming 'airmarked,' one company alone having painted city names on more than 4,000 of its stations."

"On June 30, there were 4,121 of lighted airways in operation. The commerce department will continue as rapidly as possible to light the airways, since the economical use of aircraft demands flying at night and in all vicissitudes of weather and season.

Commercial airplanes were being put into service at the rate of 100 a month at the beginning of the new fiscal year. Two hundred physicians are examining pilots, while a force of fifty experienced aircraft and engine inspectors is being built up by the department.

The bureau of standards has started a study of methods of reducing airplane noises, strength of airplane joints and fittings and the stability of planes of different types. Many new radio aeronautics problems are on the program, to supplement progress already made in the investigation of radio telephony, directive radio beacons and beacon markers.

GROOMS INDICTED FOR MANSLAUGHTER AT SPECIAL SESSION

One Case Ignored—Bartlett And Sayre Are Accused

Walter Grooms, 18, whose auto struck and fatally injured Roy Vernon Archer, 21, on S. Detroit St., November 16, was indicted for manslaughter by the October grand jury which presented seven true bills and ignored one case in eight considered Monday.

The jury made its complete report at 4:30 p. m., after being in special session all day. More than twenty-four witnesses were examined. No examination of the County Jail was made.

An indictment charging robbery was returned against Troy Bartlett, Clarksburg, W. Va., who was identified by J. A. Wipert, manager of The Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co. branch store, Main and West Sts., as one of two youthful bandits who held up the grocery store October 22.

Earl Sayre, Clarksburg, W. Va., companion of Bartlett, who denied implication in the holdup, was indicted Monday on a charge of carrying concealed weapons. A revolver was found in his possession when police arrested him October 23 as a suspect in the robbery case.

John Morgan, colored, was indicted on a charge of concealing stolen property. Police arrested him on a charge of wholesale thefts of furnishings from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Darling, colored, October 22. The alleged loot was later discovered in a house rented by Morgan at Wilberforce.

The stolen goods, valued at $150, included three room-size rugs, two sheets, six pillow slips, four small rugs, silverware, knives and forks, one feather tick, a Remington rifle, a gold hunting case watch, two black, silk dresses, a basket of wash clothes, sheets and other clothing and a set of carpenter tools.

Indictment for removing mortgaged property out of the state without the consent of the mortgagee, was returned against George Pettiford, colored, Pettiford, the indictment charged, made a mortgage to Fred A. Johnston August 7, 1926, on a Big Six Buick coupe, valued at $150.

Indictments were also returned against Bertha Harris, colored, on a charge of cutting Geneva Freeman, also colored, with intent to kill October 14; and against William Hicks, colored, on a statutory charge, the offense, police say, having been committed against his stepdaughter, Eula Raspberry, November 14.

The single case ignored was that of James Carpenter.

Almost every afternoon this week may be devoted to arraignment prisoners on the indictments in Common Pleas Court.

COOLIDGE ADMINISTRATION TO SIDE STEP SOFT COAL STRIKE

Will Not Sponsor Peace Conference Unless Assured Of Success—Not Anxious To Assume Blame For Failure

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The Coolidge administration doesn't intend to become actively involved in the soft coal strike.

It is willing to sponsor a peace conference between Pennsylvania, Ohio and West Virginia operators and miners only if both sides signify beforehand that such negotiations likely would be successful. It doesn't want to assume any blame if a meeting is called and then fails.

If no word is forthcoming from the operators that they are ready to negotiate, the administration will follow its hands off policy based on the grounds, as outlined by President Coolidge, that the government is without power to intervene in the present situation.

An outline of the government's position has been given John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, who was a member of the labor delegation which asked the president to summon a peace conference to end the strike of 150,000 miners.

Government officials expressed the belief today that the operators would decline to enter negotiations at this time. They pointed out that the mine owners turned down peace overtures advanced by Gov. Donahoe of Ohio after the workers had agreed to negotiate a new wage scale.

There has been no change in the situation since then to cause belief that the operators would alter their stand. On the contrary, some of the operators have posted further wage cuts and have been fortified in their fight by federal court injunctions against picketing and molesting of non-union laborers.

Lewis announced today that the miners are prepared "to go into a conference without prejudice and without commitments," indicating that the union may compromise on a wage scale to obtain peace.

"We believe that a conference should be held to terminate an intolerable situation," he added.

GILES STARTS OCEAN FLIGHT

MUNICIPAL AIRPORT, San Francisco, Nov. 22.—A man-made bird was winging westward today in another attempt to conquer the Pacific. Delayed by diverse weather conditions for the past week, Captain Frederick A. Giles, British airman, again took to the air at 7:24 this morning. He hopes to be in Hawaii before noon tomorrow.

OIL COMPANY HEADS AND SLEUTHS NAMED IN COURT PETITION

Charges Result Of Jury
Tampering In Conspiracy
Trial

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—District Attorney Peyton Gordon went into federal court here today and formally petitioned Justice Frederic L. Siddons to adjudge Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire oil magnate, two of his officials, and three officials of the Burns detective agency in contempt of court.

Those named in the government's petition besides Sinclair himself were:

H. Mason Day, vice-president of the Sinclair Exploration Co.

A. Sheldon Clark, vice-president of the Sinclair Refining Co.

Wm. J. Burns, titular head of the detective agency bearing his name.

Charles Veitsch, manager of the Baltimore branch of the Burns agency.

The citations were requested of the court because of the jury-shadowing activities of the Burns agents, which the government contends was performed at the instance of Sinclair and his representatives. Clark and Day, according to the government, were the "contact men" between Sinclair and the jury trailing Burns agents. Veitsch, the government charges, was the "pay off" man.

Today's action follows a two-weeks' grand jury investigation into the alleged jury-tampering in the Fall-Sinclair conspiracy trial. This alleged tampering, combined with "loose talking" by juror Edward Kidwell, led Justice Siddons to declare a mistrial several weeks ago just as the government had concluded its representation of evidence.

H. Mason Day and Sheldon Clark—already have been charged in complaints lodged with a U. S. Commissioner with conspiracy to illegally influence a petit jury.

TRANSJORDAN ARABS FIGHT BRITAIN OVER BOUNDARY TREATY

JERUSALEM, Nov. 22.—"Arab leaders in Transjordan are dissatisfied with the agreement drafted by the British government for Emir Abdullah's signature. Yielding to pressure from paramount Sheikhs the Emir has returned the document, unsigned with suggestions for many important changes.

Dissatisfaction is especially rife among the Sheikhs because in fixing the boundaries between Transjordan and Palestine, Syria, Nejd, and Hedjaz, the British authorities concerned are said to have failed to take into account the wishes of the Transjordanians.

It is claimed that the northern frontier has never been definitely delineated, the Palestine Administration in agreement with the French authorities in Syria altering the line without reference to the Emir.

Arab newspapers say Transjordan is bitter because it has been deprived of El Hama near Tiberias, in order to give "Zionist Palestine the lands necessary for the Hutzburg electrification scheme."

The affairs of the Emirate are also said to be in great disorder, and its authority in most vital matters, nil. The commission set up by the British representatives to inquire into the future of the Emirate took it upon itself to discuss the whole basis of a constitution for Transjordan and was promptly dismissed. The drafting of the constitution was left entirely to the Colonial Office in London. This draft when submitted for Emir Abdullah's signature was returned as untenable and repugnant from the Arab nationalists' point of view.

Abdullah's rejection of the agreement has failed to appease the nationalists, who continue to question his right to rule over them. They accuse him of undue friendship towards Britain. In return for the annual grant-in-aid for his "Civil List" amounting in 1925 to 30,000 lbs. and in 1926, 12,000 lbs.

Troop No. 11, Boy Scouts of America, will hold its regular weekly meeting at the new Scout cabin Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock, according to an announcement by Deputy Scout Commissioner R. H. Kingsbury.

Troop No. 43 held a meeting Monday night and the boys enjoyed a "feed" prepared by Mrs. J. J. Stout, wife of Scoutmaster Stout.

When sending for material which we offer you, please remember to enclose a STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and gaining is the only one for which you must enclose TEN cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to me in care of this paper. Make them as brief as possible, NOT OVER 200 WORDS, and type or write them legibly with ink. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to answer every individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible, if they are of general interest. Don't forget the STAMPED, SELF-ADDRESSED ENVELOPE if you expect me to send you the information I have offered. — Lulu Hunt Peters.

Answers to Correspondents

Teeth—Look to Them!

I've just come from a little bout with my dentist. Didn't hurt much because I go at least every six months, and if there are any little beginnings of decay, they are attended to. Then my teeth get a thorough cleaning.

Do you know that no matter how thoroughly and how often you wash your teeth, you can't get all of the bacteria off, and here is a little accumulation that should be scraped off every six months? It is hard, because it is caused by a precipitation of mineral salts of the saliva as well as bacteria and food debris.

We have known for a good many years that diet has a great deal to do with the teeth of the young, but it is only in recent years that it has been known that the diet has also considerable to do with adult teeth. Yes, the teeth are affected by diet even after full growth. There is no doubt that decay is kept at bay when the teeth are maintained in their normal hardness by a proper diet, and certainly the gums are kept in better condition, and pyorrhea discouraged.

I was interested to read an article which stated that Dr. William Hunter informed members of the British Medical association that a large proportion of the insanity among the 133,000 inmates in their asylums was due to poisoning of the brain, chiefly from bad teeth! Dr. Hunter contends that many cases of neuritis and neuropathia (so-called nervous attacks and mental depression) result from septic infections largely from the teeth. He believes that the authorities should compel every mental hospital to maintain a competent dental equipment for treating its patients.

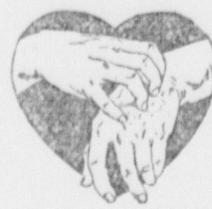

I told you a short time ago about a report given by a certain industrial organization. It stated that of 185 patients seeking relief from various disorders, over eighty-two per cent were relieved by the removal of dental infections! Certainly it is wise for us to make good

those of you who are anxious to reduce may have this by sending ten cents in stamps and a self-addressed, stamped envelope. (Of course, I won't mind if you get the book, too!)

I'm glad you wrote, A., for your letter will strengthen the morale of those who are easily discouraged by their friends and relatives, who really are well intentioned but uninformed. It is not unusual at all to look drawn and haggard while reducing, and you just have to realize this and hold the thought firmly in mind that no matter how you look while reducing—if you do it correctly—when you get down to normal and are on your maintenance diet, you will look 100 per cent (yes, sometimes 1,000 per cent) better than you did before you started.

I don't want to give the impression that this is a beauty column, so I will add that you may have saved yourself from diabetes, hardening of the arteries (arteriosclerosis) and high blood pressure and chronic lots of other things, and perhaps premature death.

Tomorrow: Notes On—You know What.

IS THERE NO RELIEF FROM SKIN TORTURE?

Must I Continue to Suffer the Unbearable Itching?

Are you one of those unfortunate who are going through life suffering with skin disease, making you uncomfortable, making you less efficient, interfering with your working hours, ruining your sleep? You may have tried many things without relief. Why not try S.S.S.? For more than 100 years it has been giving relief in many forms of skin disease. Thousands of letters of gratitude prove its worth.

"I feel so happy for what S.S.S. has done for me that I want others to know about it. I suffered twenty long years from eczema. At times the itching was unbearable. During that time, I used all kinds of salves without receiving any real benefit. After taking skin medicine S.S.S., I was cured of this dreadful disease. I recommend S.S.S. to anyone suffering from eczema, because I cannot praise it enough for what it has done for me." Cleophas Forte, Soldiers and Sailors Home, Quincy, Ill.

S.S.S. is purely vegetable. It is extracted from the fresh roots of medicinal plants and herbs and gives to Nature what she needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger is more economical.

"Playing the leading role calls for a perfect voice condition at all times. The throat must always be clear to avoid the embarrassment of coughing during the performance. To have this and at the same time enjoy smoking was a considerable problem for me for many years. I saw so many men smoking Lucky Strikes that I tried them. I am very happy I did. In addition to their most delightful flavor, Lucky Strikes cause me no throat irritation and my voice is always in shape for my work on the stage."

M'GERVEY CLASS GIVES RADIO TO COUNTY CHILDREN
Report of the gift of a radio by the McGervy Bible Class, Trinity M. E. Church to the Greene County Children's Home, for Thanksgiving was made at the regular meeting of the class at the home of Mrs. Roy Hayward, W. Second St., Monday evening.

The society will not hold a market as was planned for the near future, but instead, each member will contribute a dollar to the Christmas fund. Further plans were made for the Christmas work.

The meeting was in the nature of a "round party" each member bringing a donation for a needy family of the city. Mrs. J. R. Laycock led the devotions.

Mrs. Cona Hayward was assisted by Mrs. Charles Taylor, Mrs. Charles Davis, Mrs. Charles Taylor, Mrs. Perry Doggett, and Mrs. Charles Whittington.

BUTLER COUNTY SCHOOL HEAD ADDRESSES P-T. A.
Urging cooperation of parents and teachers in order to reach the highest educational ideals, Superintendent Joseph Fichter, Butler County Schools, addressed Central High P-T. A. Monday afternoon in Jean B. Elwell Auditorium.

Mrs. E. P. Hamlin made a report of the ticket sale for "The Flapper Grandmother" to be presented by the association Tuesday and Wednesday night.

Dr. W. R. McChesney, president of Cedarville College, will address the organization at next month's meeting.

Mrs. George Street, this city, delivered a missionary talk at the union meeting of the United Brethren and Friends Churches of West Elkton Circuit at West Elkton, Sunday evening. She was entertained at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Gillespie.

St. Agnes Guild will have a short business meeting at the Parish House, Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The meeting of the Hilltop Community Club, which was to have been held Friday, November 25 has been postponed one month.

Mrs. Ray Fudge was removed to her home on the Hook Road, Monday, from the McClellan Hospital, after undergoing a serious operation several weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Surface, Dayton, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Sturgeon, 28 Trumbull St.

The Old Town Community Club will hold its program Wednesday night at 7:30 o'clock. Each family is requested to bring a dozen small cakes and one pound of fruit.

Gladly Community Club will hold a meeting Friday night, November 25, at Community Hall. Refreshments will be served, consisting of meat sandwiches, open pies and pickles. Each family is asked to bring its own cup.

Women, Weak, Tired, Runday and Nervous or who suffer ovarian pains, pains in the lower part of the stomach, bearing down pains, female weaknesses, headaches, backache, menorrhagia, dysmenorrhea, nervous derangements, flushes of heat, ringing and indefinite pains, white, painful or irregular periods, should write to Mrs. Ellen Lovell, 7626 Mass., Kansas City, Mo.

She will entirely FREE and without charge to the inquirer advice of a convenient home method whereby she and other women may they have successfully relieved similar troubles.

The most common expression of these thankful women is "I feel like a new woman." And others, "I don't have any pains whatever any more." "I can hardly believe myself that your Wonderful Method has done so much good for me in such a short time." Write today. This advice is entirely free to you. She has nothing to sell.

PAPE'S COLD COMPOUND
If a sneeze or sniffle says you're threatened with a cold, you can head it off every time without "doping" yourself, or the least inconvenience.

Everyone has suggestions when you have a cold, but here's one that works! Pape's Cold Compound in simple, pleasant-tasting tablets. Even when you've let a cold get into throat and lungs—or even turn to "flu"—Pape's will knock it out.

Why daily with a slight cold, or suffer from one that is serious, when the smallest drugstore has this real relief—for thirty-five cents!

HURRICANES SWEEP SPAIN; MANY DEAD
MADRID, Nov. 22.—Many deaths and enormous damage to property crops and shipping marked the toll today of severe storm of hurricane intensity which have swept southern Spain.

In the southern provinces all the harvests, principally the olive crops, were almost destroyed.

At Malaga, the gale sunk fifteen fishing smacks and twenty-eight men aboard them were reported missing.

Numerous small vessels were wrecked at Tarragona and many of them believed sunk with their crews.

AUDIENCE ENJOYS PASSION PLAY AT CHURCH ON MONDAY
Clearly showing his exhaustive study of each character of the religious drama, Dr. Ira P. Beery, Chicago, was well received by a good sized audience at First M. E. Church, Monday night, when he impersonated characters in the Passion Play when slides of the Oberammergau play were shown, under auspices of Division Ten, Ladies' Aid Society.

Mrs. A. L. Oglesbee, chairman, and Mrs. Charles A. Kelble and Mrs. Thurman Early, members of her committee were well pleased with the results of the unusual program.

The presentation was unique in that it was a combination of pictures, impersonation and voice.

The program was augmented by musical selections including an organ number by Miss Thea Downing, vocal numbers by Mrs. John Watkins and Miss Leona Keller and a male quartet, including W. E. Currie, Karl R. Babb, Bayless Thompson and Roy Spahr. Each number was well received.

YOUNG RUN-AWAY WIVES ARE CAUGHT
General delinquency charges are to be preferred in Juvenile Court Wednesday against two youthful wives, Paye Pendell Sickles, 16, and Bertha Sickles Johnson, 17, sisters-in-law held in the County Jail.

The young wives ran away from Xenia November 2 and are reported to have accompanied a Columbus man to that city. Returning home Monday, they were picked up by police and turned over to Juvenile Judge S. C. Wright to whom their disappearance had been reported.

MISS IRENE KELBLE DIES IN HOSPITAL
Miss Irene Kelble, 22, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kelble, Dayton, formerly of Xenia, died at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Dayton, Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock, relatives here have learned.

Besides her parents, Miss Kelble leaves one sister. She had been in poor health several years and was a patient at the hospital four months.

Funeral arrangements have not been announced.

Sour Stomach
"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"
Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips."

Twenty-five cent and fifty cent bottles, any drugstore. "Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co. and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

MAYOR'S COURT
SPEEDER CAUGHT
Leonard Mangano, arrested Monday night by Peter Shagen, motorcycle policeman, on a charge of speeding, furnished $10 appearance bond and forfeited it by failure to appear before Mayor John W. Prugh. The officer reported Mangano was driving forty-two miles an hour on E. Main St. in violation of the city traffic ordinance.

Care of Babies
Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little first-aid spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good.

BURNING BOOKS

Foreign propaganda doesn't alarm the average American as much as it alarms Mayor Thompson, of Chicago. There is a vast amount of propaganda going on in this country for every nation, nationally and race under the sun. As an American we may feel highly gratified that this is the case.

The foreign nations present their points of view as often and as forcefully as possible to the people of the United States. Why? Because they all value American opinion and American friendship.

Nobody is carrying on any great amount of propaganda in Persia, we may venture. It wouldn't be worth while. Persia is a noble little country, and highly respectful, but it simply doesn't figure for much in the universal economy.

But everybody from everywhere is busy in the United States, trying to get us to think well of his country, of his city, of his industrial area. The friendship of this country is well worth working for.

Now do we blame the British, the French, the Germans or the Hindus for presenting the merits of their respective points of view to the Americans. We ought to be interested in all these peoples. We ought to have opinions concerning the Gandhi movement in India, the Youth movement in Germany and Czechoslovakia, the Republican movement in Ireland, the regaining movement among the repatriated Greeks. Americans should take an intelligent interest in the explicable conditions of the French in Africa. The more we read and hear about those things, the better citizens of our country and of the world we will be.

Of course, it is a matter of regret that it is impossible to have school histories that are not colored somewhat by the sympathies of the writers of histories. It may be that Big Bill has found the British point of view over-emphasized in some of the histories in the Chicago schools. Even so, we shouldn't recommend burning the histories or cremating the images and photographs of King George that may be unearthed in Chicago.

No permanent damage will be done by this propaganda that historians put into their histories. Propaganda in this case, means a point of view which you do not happen to agree. Well, just wait ten years, and the point of view in the school histories will change. Other histories, other angles on history.

Burning books because of the point of view expressed in them is foolish and dangerous business. Somebody did that at Alexandria once, and the world is still the poorer. Somebody did that at Louvain, and the world of learning still mourns.

Ideas that you don't like are best combatted by ideas. And if you haven't any ideas, it is vain to resort to fire.

The Way of the World

By GROVE PATTERSON
MILLIONAIRE

Cecil Rhodes, who had as many millions as some people have dollars had two great ambitions.

The first was to do the greatest possible good for barbarous humanity. He donated 13,000 acres of land and $8,000,000 worth of buildings for African missions.

Rhodes' second ambition was to bring the United States and England so close together that there never could be a war between them. Towards accomplishing the second aim he established the $10,000,000 Rhodes scholarship fund.

PROPAGANDA

Mayor "Bill" Thompson of Chicago wants to counteract pro-British propaganda. Probably he would like to make it impossible for any Chicago boys to become Rhodes scholars. That's foolish. American youths who benefit from Rhodes' generosity have the chance to decide for themselves whether they will be pro-British or pro-anything. A few years in Oxford gives them the opportunity to study the English mind, to get a broader point of view.

$20,000

A girl whose cheek was scarred in an automobile accident asks $20,000 for the loss of her beauty. The scar is about three inches long and a quarter of an inch broad. Some will say $20,000 is too much. Others will argue that it is not enough. Appearance does make a difference. It makes people welcome and others disdain our company.

NEWSPAPERS

J. C. McQuiston, advertising manager for the Westinghouse company of East Pittsburgh, declares everybody reads the newspapers to keep abreast the times. McQuiston is right. We hate to be among the few who don't know what is going on.

Advertising men will be interested in the advantages which McQuiston says newspapers have over other mediums; intimacy, flexibility, co-operation, tie-ins, reader interest, instant action and ability to check results.

If you don't know what those terms mean ask one of your friends who is in the advertising business.

STARS

An explorer argues that science shows the possibility of there being life of some kind on some planets or some of the stars. The topic is safe enough. No one can prove he is wrong. There is a cash award waiting for the first person who talks to Mars but no one has claimed it.

ADVERTISING

More than one billion, two hundred million dollars were spent in advertising in 1923 in the United States. Between fifty and sixty millions are spent every year by the leading motor car companies. Whatever hastens the conversation of natural resources into forms for human use works a social benefit. Whatever retards such conversion works a social injury. Advertising surely hastens the production and consumption of raw materials. Advertising is one of the great social benefits of mankind.

NEWS COMMENT AND VIEWS

The Daybook

OF A

New Yorker

By
Barton Rascoe

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—From Henry Barn, president and founder of the Tobacco Society for Voice Culture, comes the following illuminating letter:

"I read your article about the Tobacco society . . . and I regret there should be some puzzle-mist as to its purpose. I'll tell you what it's all about and maybe you'll pass the good word on to your readers. We believe in viciousness for vice's sake! We believe in smoking for the pure, innocent and obscene pleasure to be derived from it! We're sick of the white republicans of all colors who take a simple, inoffensive cigarette and place it in the pharmacopoeia with smelly drugs and gargles and what not. We're tired of literate, formidably old gold flaky-struck insinuations and shrieks about all the ills that wealth, flesh and man can be heir to. We want to be let alone to be wicked, to be unafraid, to enjoy ourselves. We're trying to kid the bunk that is handed out by the advertising publishers of joy to an innocent public. Don't you think it's time for some of us to rebel?"

I'm still puzzled, after all that eloquence, Henry. It strikes me as being heavy-handed kidding.

Down the street is a treasured colored cook who owns to a dusky husband over in Brooklyn. Her mistress called Viney up at her Harlem hang-out on the latter's day off. It was the week, also, of Florence Mills' spectacular burlesque. "There's a telegram for you, Viney," she said. "Want me to read it?" Viney said yes, and in the usual voice trembling with emotion, the lady of the house, confident the bad things Viney's man had been badly hurt in a traffic tieup on the south shore of Long Island. The message had a come-at-once import. But Viney was firm in her refusal to get excited about it. "That man's pretty no-account," she said, indifferently. "I ain't going out there tonight, no ways. 'Taint often I get to see such a grand layin' out as Florence Mills. I'd miss it if it's to hurry off to Sam."

The tabloid reached a height of printed with innocent gusto, pictures of the "honeymoon cabin" to be occupied by Mr. Arthur Ramos and his bride, the Standard Oil heiress, Millicent Rogers. In the city room of a newspaper in a smaller American city, such a picture would be thrown out if ever it reached the desk. Certain it is that no regular city editor would give a photographer an assignment to secure such a picture. But the function of the tabloid journal is unique. The lowest curiosity of Peeping Tom is satisfied. Yet these "picture butchers" on the tabloids are good fellows, conservative, quiet, well-mannered, seemly. Most of them are married (happily) and live in Brooklyn. There is nothing in their private lives to indicate that their daily jobs are rather on a par with that of the white wing who sweeps up Park Row.

In our town: Chas. Ray has rented a flat in the Barclay, down Lexington Avenue way, and expects to spend the winter hereabouts with the missus. . . . Ellis Parker Butler's girl was married over to Flushing the day after. . . . Flo Easton played the folks over at the Metropolitan Opera House Tuesday eve, in "La Gioconda." All expected to see Rosa Ponelle instead, but Flo was voted a successful sub. . . . They do say Mary Pickford's pretty good in "My Best Girl." . . . Helen Hayes in "Coquette" at the Maxine Elfreight theatre the other night certainly did herself proud. The folks cheered and stamped their feet.

Harry Hershfield was complaining about a certain Broadwayite who is always moaning about something or other always making a nuisance of himself. "He's the only guy I know," said Harry, "who can make a noise buttoning his coat."

Household Hints

MENU HINT

When young folks come in from a skating party or a hike on Sunday afternoon they are hungry and want a hearty, hot dish for "tea." The baked sausage and apple dish might be just the thing to appeal to them. And it is not a "fussy" dish to the housekeeper.

Baked Sausage and Apples or Fried Wheat Bread Butter
Fruit Gelatine with Whipped Cream Coffee or Cocoa

Today's Recipes

Baked Sausage and Apples—In the center of roasting pan place as many sausages as you wish. Let them cook for two or three minutes in oven, then pierce each with a silver fork. Core as many tart apples as you wish and surround the sausages with them. Return to the oven and allow to cook till the sausages and apples are well baked.

Baste frequently with the juice from apples and the grease from the sausages.
Serve on platter with sausages in center and apples surrounding them. Serve hot.

Fried Oysters—Pick over the oysters and wipe them dry with a cloth or absorbent paper. Marinate in French dressing, drain and roll in cracker crumbs, then dip in egg and again roll in crumbs. Or dip in the following batter:

A POSSIBLE CHRISTMAS CAROL IN ROUMANIA

Peter's Adventures

By Mrs. Florence Smith Vincent.

A Rough Road to Travel

"S-s-s-s-s," hissed Rattler. And that, as everybody knows, in Snake language, means "Yes." "Then folks have always had a thing they grow quite used to it, but I suppose it does seem strange to a Two-Legs to find out there is an eye that cannot be poked out with sticks or blinded if a stone should happen to fly its way. But speaking of being blinded, dear, dear! You have no idea how uncomfortable it is. How I do hate shedding season!"

"That is the second time you have mentioned it," declared the Boy. "What in the world do you mean? You have no feathers. What do you shed?"

"My skin," declared Rattler, promptly. "And a most annoying performance it is, too." "But my should you do such a crazy thing?" demanded Peter. Rattler immediately became annoyed, a habit of his!

"Isn't a crazy thing!" hissed he. Then he looked up at Peter. "Say, Two-Legs, you don't crawl on your stomach, do you?" Peter has never been asked a question that surprised him more. "Not I," declared he. "Why?"

"But Rattler interrupted. "Well, do!" hissed the Serpent.

"Tis my way of traveling, and, as you may imagine, mine is no easy road. Sticks and stones can't hurt my bones, they are too well padded with muscles for that, you know, but they will dig off my skin. Constant rubbing will wear away even the toughest. And another reason, why one covering will not last for a very long time—perhaps you never knew it—I move the scales on the bottom of my body—just push myself over the ground with them. It's good exercise, of course, but hard on the scales. If I only had a few legs—I wouldn't need anything like the number the Centipede has, or Daddy-Long-Legs—it would help me some. But I haven't. I have to depend on wiggles, and I will say I can go some when I get started. No, sirree! No Serpent worth his salt can make his suit last more than just one season! It is a good thing, too, for if there's one thing I like it's sleek, shiny new clothes."

Next—"An Impossible Friendship."

"Dear Mrs. Lee: I am a girl 18. I have gone with boys three years. I started going with a young boy about eight months ago. We seemed to fall in love with each other. I would not allow him to 'pet' until we had gone together about three months. Then I allowed him to put his arm around me and kiss me once in a while. About three weeks ago he broke a date. I've never seen him since. Do you think it is because I allowed him to kiss me? There seem so many boys that won't go with a girl unless she will allow 'petting' when I know she won't."

"Wondering Eccey."

After being good friends for eight months I can't believe your friend broke his engagement and stopped going with you because you let him kiss you once in a while. Sure he isn't sick or something? If not he must have

One and one-fourth cups flour, two teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one egg, two-thirds cup milk.
Mix and sift the flour, baking powder and salt. Beat the egg and add it to the milk. Combine mixtures and beat until smooth. Let this batter stand for a short time before dipping the oysters in. Then put the oysters in a frying basket and fry brown. The temperature of the fat should be 390 degrees Fahrenheit. If you haven't a thermometer use the old-fashioned bread test. Cut one-inch cubes of soft bread. Put it in the hot fat. If it turns golden brown in 40 seconds the fat is hot enough. Fry only three or four oysters at a time.

Behind the Scenes in Washington

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Compromise of old certainly has been a god among Republicans in politics.

Democrats haven't worshiped him so consistently.

Yet just now, with congress about to meet, the Democrats appear to be a good deal nearer an agreement on the 1928 presidential question than the Republicans.

To say that the former are united on Al Smith would be going too far, but there can't be any doubt that he's the strongest single candidate among them. Republican candidates are so mixed that it's hard to pick a favorite.

Both parties are split.

The Democrats are split wet and dry and the Republicans are split east and west.

There are splits within splits, but those are the main ones. Nobody, I feel sure, but would have agreed, less than a year ago, that a wet and dry split was the most impossible of all splits to cement together, and yet it's been done after a fashion—not to perfection, of course, but well enough so that it doesn't gape as wide open as it did.

In comparison, the east and west split has cracked apart until it worries the fixers like sixty.

Who'd have thought that Al Smith, the original wet hope, could be successfully advertised as a first-class dry champion.

Nevertheless, his booster had the chilled steel nerve to try it, and darned if they don't seem to have convinced a lot of people that Al really is an ideal compromise on that issue.

The cement may not stand the strain of a convention, to be sure, but at present, what formidable rival shows against Al? Jim Reed of Missouri comes the nearest to it, but he isn't within a city block of the New Yorker, and the rest are nowhere.

At any rate, there isn't any conversation to the contrary.

On the Republican side of the fence everything is jawing back and forth, and confusion. Hoover, Hughes, Lowden and Dawes! They keep alone about in a bunch—now one a little ahead, apparently; now another. And down in the bottom of their hearts, the managers are afraid of all of 'em—on account of the western farmers. It's no cinch that they won't combine yet on Senator Curtis of Kansas.

Why the east and west can't compromise, if the wets and dries can, is a puzzle, but they don't appear to find it so easy.

Hughes surely can't qualify as an agriculturist. Hoover's so far west that he rates as an easterner. Dawes can't prove that he ever cultivated anything but the money market. Lowden, himself with his lowing herd of sleeping cars, is evidently entirely convinced of the dirt farmers.

Still and all, if the Democrats can compromise on Al Smith as a wet-dry, it certainly looks as if the Republicans ought to be able to compromise even on Hughes—as almost anything. And on Curtis, without a bit of trouble.

Only, they don't do it.

They will, though.

And the last minute will find the Democrats all shot to blazes. It always happens that way, except once in a coon's age, and that isn't often enough to make a book on.

How to Achieve Beauty

By MME. HELENA RUBINSTEIN

SETTING THE STAGE FOR YOUR BEAUTY

Beauty is something you cannot dissect into its different parts. You may have lovely eyes, features like a Grecian goddess, a divine figure, but you will not be beautiful in the modern sense of the word until you are well-groomed, attractive in every detail of the whole ensemble of good looks. Beauty is like the proverbial chain that is only as strong as its weakest link. In part talks I have given you a great deal of advice on your skin, your eyes, your hair, your figure, hands, feet, etc., but I am going to take this week to talk about the little things that count for beauty, the details that are in danger of being forgotten.

Have you ever thought about setting the stage for your beauty? A charming woman is very much like a precious stone which loses much of its value if it is not well set. Every woman owes it to herself to do everything she can to make her own personal setting a constant flattery. The background of your home is extremely important—the colors, the decorations must be of such a kind that they bring out your beauty. See that your drapes, wall papers, upholstery and, above all, the pillows on your davenport, are of flattering shades. I have seen a very beautiful woman fade into complete insignificance against the gilded, glittering, elaborate room she had arranged for herself. Remember always that your surroundings are only the accompaniment and you yourself are the star.

I Have Said in My Heart

By IDAH MCGLOONE GIBSON DEBTERS

Do we realize how often we neglect the debts we owe to our friends and those we love?

We hear that someone is shut in for a little while or that she has suffered some grief or ever illness. We say to ourselves, "We must visit that friend tomorrow."

We do not go today for there is a meeting for the making of arrangements for one of the numerous charity dinners which are always with us; a luncheon at which we will discuss the work being done by the Young Women's Christian Association and sometime this afternoon we have promised ourselves to get over to see that little woman whose child is so ill. She probably needs milk and other necessities for the child and some money will not come amiss.

In the meantime the illness of our friend slips our mind. We do not go either the next day or the next week.

Of course, we know that our friend is materially well cared for. We know that she has money enough to supply her wants, but what of the heart-longing and hunger that gave her a feeling that she is forgotten, that we do not love her any more, that all our protestations of friendship are but idle speech.

We do not discuss our debts of this kind to our friends. We grow lax and thoughtless of them even while pluming ourselves on our kindness and devotion to duty.

I was reminded of this the other day. I went to visit a friend, a woman whom I love much, and I made the usual excuse of philanthropic errands, of days filled with work and the calls upon me from those in physical need. She said, in rather a pathetic voice, "I think I have learned, and I have been lying here that there is a duty we owe to our equals. I don't think I will ever let the material needs of the stranger come before."

That thought has stuck. Because a person is not hungry for bread, because a person has a beautiful home and every material comfort is no reason why when that person becomes a shut-in, we should not show that we remember and think of her daily.

All these people probably are in our thoughts, but because they are so near and dear to us we have a feeling that they should read our minds and rest secure in the knowledge that they have a place in our hearts.

Each one of us knows how delighted and happy she has been to receive a little note from a friend or a few flowers or some little attention when she was feeling that the world was upside down.

This is not sentimentality. It is absolutely doing those little things, showing those little thoughtfulnesses that make life worth living, both for ourselves and for others.

A few weeks ago some woman wrote me an old rhyme: "We have careful thought for the stranger."

And smiles for the sometimes guest.

But for our own bitter tone, Though we love our own the best.

Everyone knows that that is true, but I would go a little further and ask for thoughtfulness instead of forgetfulness of those people with whom we associate every day and who are "our equals."

Memo: If "charity begins at home" then thoughtfulness and sympathy should be first dispensed among our friends and those we love.

Central Gridders Meet Springfield Thursday

ELEVEN PLAYERS TO CLOSE SCHOLASTIC FOOTBALL CAREERS

History Of Meetings Gives Reaper City Important Edge

Eleven members of Central High School's football squad will be writing final letters to their scholastic gridiron careers when the Blue and White Thanksgiving Day tilt with Springfield High School at South Side, Thursday at 2 p. m.

Captain Bob Morton, Doak, Higgins—names that have been associated with Xenia football for several years, are among those who will don "moleskins" for the last time. And it will be the last act for many others.

Rakoff and Clemens have apparently concluded their participation in football games as both have injuries that will probably keep them out of the final contest.

Records of Xenia and Springfield this season compare favorably. Springfield has won four games, and lost the same number, having defeated Cedarville, Lima South, Dayton Steele and Findlay, while losing to Columbus West, Dayton Silvers, Toledo Scott and Hamilton. The Reaper City team has scored 102 points to its opponents' 114.

Central has a similar record, having won three games, lost three games, tied three games and scored twenty-nine points to opponents' ninety-two. The Thanksgiving Day tussle will decide which eleven is to rise above the 500 per cent average and which team is to wind up its season with more defeats than victories.

ROTARY ANNS HEAR DARLINGTON SPEAK

"Rotary Anns" were privileged to attend the weekly luncheon meeting of the Xenia Rotary Club, Tuesday at the Elks' Club, when Attorney C. L. Darlington, former commander of the Ohio American Legion, told of his trip to Europe to attend the Legion convention. Attorney Darlington described his visit in detail and told many amusing incidents and interesting facts in connection with the Good Will Tour of Legion officials.

D. W. Cherry presided at the meeting. Attorney Darlington's talk was the only feature of the program.

HEARING SET

Petition filed by B. B. Stackhouse and other property owners for the construction of a single county ditch in Silvercreek and Jefferson Twp., to be known as the Lucas ditch, is scheduled to be given a hearing by County Commissioners at their regular meeting Wednesday.

Commissioners viewed the route along which it is proposed to construct the ditch Monday.

ANTIOCH'S TWO COURT TEAMS WILL PLAY TWELVE CONTESTS

Twelve games, seven at home and five away, including one tentative date, appear on the 1927-28 basketball schedule arranged jointly for the "A" and "B" divisions of Antioch College, as announced by Coach Merrill Dawson.

"A" division's court squad opens the season against Cedarville College at Cedarville December 2, after playing the annual alumni game November 26. This division will then play two more games, one away and one at home, before turning the schedule over to "B" division's cage quintet.

"B" division will play five straight games, two at Yellow Springs and three on foreign courts, beginning January 10 when Capital University of Columbus comes to Antioch.

Division "A" plays, out the remainder of the schedule, opening with the University of Dayton at Antioch February 15. Another contest will be played at home the following week after which the season ends at Bluffton February 25.

Coach Dawson faces the task of building two separate basketball teams, but has at least three letter men back in each division and some fairly promising material.

Practice is already under way for Division A as fourteen candidates answered the initial call last week. Division A is without a captain but a leader is expected to be elected before the opening contest.

O'Connor, guard, and Toomire and Wilcox, forwards, are the let-ter men available for this division's team. Pife, a guard, who is suffering from an injured knee, is another veteran who may also be available.

Captain Teegarden and Bostwick, forwards, and Seaman, guard, are letter men for Division B but several of the veterans in this division are on scholastic probation and it is uncertain at this time whether they will be available.

The 1927-28 schedule follows: Division "A": November 26—Alumni game. December 2—Cedarville away. December 6—Bliss Business College, Columbus, at home, (tentative).

EAGLES WILL HONOR XENIA PHYSICIAN

Urged on by the success which attended their recent drive for a large Armistice Day class, members of Xenia Aerie, No. 1639, Fraternal Order of Eagles, are putting forth strenuous efforts in behalf of the proposed "Dr. Frank M. Chambliss" class with the hope of making the coming initiation even larger.

This class will honor Dr. Chambliss, the Aerie physician, whose efforts have assured the success of the annual winter membership campaign.

Handsome prizes are being offered by the Ohio organization department of the order to the individuals signing the greatest number of applicants. At present, Dr. Chambliss is leading other members of the local Aerie.

The class honoring the physician will be initiated Sunday, December 11 at 3:30 p. m.

EYE MEN TO MEET

Optometrists from Montgomery, Darke, Greene, Preble, Clark and Miami Counties and the city of Middletown will gather at the Grey Manor in Dayton Wednesday evening for a business session and dinner. The optometrists will be accompanied by their wives and special entertainment has been arranged.

Dr. S. C. Philbrook of Piqua is the zone governor and the county chairmen include: Dr. E. B. Elliott, Dayton; Dr. W. S. Niswonger, Greenville; Dr. L. A. Wagner, Xenia; Dr. H. R. Spitzer, Eaton, who is state secretary; Dr. H. S. Wadd, Springfield; and Dr. Harry Brakeman, of Middletown. Dr. E. O. Sterzer of Dayton is the state president.

WILL BUILD SCHOOL IN YELLOW SPRINGS ON DONATED TRACT

Selection of a sixteen-acre tract of land given the village by the late John Bryan, eccentric millionaire, ten years ago, as a site for the new school building to be erected in Yellow Springs, was made Monday night by the village school board and the Miami Twp. school board.

Walker and Norwich, Dayton architects, were chosen to draw up plans for the structure.

Selection of the building site was made at a joint meeting of the two school boards after the village board had engaged Walker and Norwich as architects in connection with the remodeling of the present eight-room school building on Dayton St.

Both boards sponsored bond issues, which were approved by the village and township voters at the November 5 election, making funds available for the construction and remodeling projects.

TURKEY FOR PUPILS OF HOME THURSDAY

Children of the O. S. and S. O. Home anticipate a real Thanksgiving Day as William Marshall, Cedarville poultry raiser, announced Tuesday that he has furnished 1,000 pounds of turkey to the institution, obtained from Kentucky.

Because turkeys are unusually scarce this year, the cost of Thanksgiving Day birds is higher than for the past four or five years, according to Mr. Marshall.

A PRISONER'S TALE

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—When a Los Angeles man sought an evening's recreation and wanted to be sure he would be free of witty observations, he adopted effective measures. He simply thrust her into a clothes closet, locked the door and threw the key away. But the wife got tired of being a prisoner every time her husband felt like stepping out and appeared before County Clerk Lampton with a divorce complaint.

"You can get rid of Catarrh"

The real cause of catarrh is an inflammation of the mucous membranes. Once this is ended, catarrh quickly disappears. Hall's Catarrh Medicine goes directly to the cause, clears up the inflammation of the delicate linings of nose, throat and ear passages and gives Nature a chance. If you have nasal catarrh, catarrhal deafness, catarrhal bad breath or frequent colds, start taking Hall's now. Ask your druggist. Price 85c.

FORTY AND EIGHT MEMBERS TO ENTERTAIN HOME CHILDREN

Annual Thanksgiving party sponsored by the Grand Volture of Ohio, Forty and Eight Society, to be held at the O. S. and S. O. Home Saturday, is expected to attract members and their wives and families from all parts of the state. Seventy-five delegates from Columbus alone are expected to attend.

Chief among the scheduled attractions will be a football game between the Home School and Washington C. H. High School Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Admission will be free and the public is invited to attend. Maneuvers by the cadet band will be a feature.

The Home eleven has played seven games this season, winning four games, losing two and playing one tie game. Dr. Dave Reese, Denison, will referee the contest with Paul Fuller as umpire and Paul Turnbull as headlinesman.

A dress parade of the cadet battalion, which will be held either Saturday afternoon following the football game, or Sunday morning, depending upon the weather, will be reviewed by Colonel E. S. Thacher and staff of the 134th Artillery.

In the evening an entertainment and dance in the auditorium is being planned. A motion picture show will probably be shown with other vaudeville acts, followed by dancing to music furnished by Clarence Jeffries and his orchestra.

Many of the visitors will return home Saturday night but others will stay over for a business meeting of the Grand Volture and the Ohio Welfare Committee of the society, which is scheduled for Sunday morning.

Pelham St. George Bissell, New York, chief de chemin de fer of the Forty and Eight, will also be present, marking his first visit into Ohio. The meetings will be in charge of A. E. Libes, 238 Dakota Ave., Columbus, grand chef de gare.

Those in the receiving line for the evening were Miss Ferguson, Mrs. Ferguson, rev. Hutchinson and Mrs. Squire Buster, of Wilmington. Those who assisted the hostess in dispensing the hospitality of the evening were Mrs. John R. Moore, Mrs. William Rogers and Mrs. Lester Lane.

Miss Mattie Ann Thomas presided at the punch bowl.

The program for the evening was rendered by Miss Jennie Green who gave an instrumental number and solos by Mrs. Henrietta Hall, Mrs. John Samuels and Mr. William Rickman.

Miss Ferguson sang several numbers and gave many inspiring and instructive talks on her visits to Germany, Belgium, England, Holland and France. The guests, including quite a number of out of town friends, enjoyed the many delightful events of the afternoon and evening.

The closing of the seventh annual conference of the Community Bible School was held Sunday. Visitors were present from Xenia, Dayton, Jamestown and Columbus. The school was organized in 1920 with Mrs. Hattie Spencer as president and in recognition of her faithful service she was presented a seven-seal diploma.

Mothers Mary Roman, Clay Grigsby, Fannie Garrett and Sarah Child were promoted to the fifth year study. In the children's department, Lilla Willis was promoted from the Cradle Roll to the Primary Department. Mrs. Laura Harris is president of the children's department. Following the promotions Mrs. R. E. Harrison, evangelist of Hopkinsville, Ky., delivered a stirring address on "Sin."

LICENSE DELAY KEEPS PAIR SINGLE

PASSAIC, N. J. Ignazio Fallace, 72, waited into city hall and applied for a license to marry his seventy-three-year-old sweetheart. He was disconcerted when he learned that he would have to wait 72 hours before the license could be delivered to him, but he told the clerk to fill it out. Three days later Ignazio appeared again at city hall and requested the clerk to tear up the license. His fiancée had too much time to think the matter over and decided she didn't like him any more, he announced.

One of the most interesting social events of the season in this locality was a reception given by the Trustee Aid of St. John's A. M. E. Church of Xenia, Ohio, honoring Miss Helen W. Ferguson, who has returned from abroad.

The spacious home of Mrs. Minnie J. Neill which was beautifully decorated for the occasion was thrown open Thursday, November 17 to guests from 2 until 10 o'clock.

Miss Ferguson, one of Xenia's popular and talented young ladies, wore a handsome Parisian evening gown of gold cloth embroidered in gold roses.

The closing of the seventh annual conference of the Community Bible School was held Sunday. Visitors were present from Xenia, Dayton, Jamestown and Columbus. The school was organized in 1920 with Mrs. Hattie Spencer as president and in recognition of her faithful service she was presented a seven-seal diploma.

Mothers Mary Roman, Clay Grigsby, Fannie Garrett and Sarah Child were promoted to the fifth year study. In the children's department, Lilla Willis was promoted from the Cradle Roll to the Primary Department. Mrs. Laura Harris is president of the children's department. Following the promotions Mrs. R. E. Harrison, evangelist of Hopkinsville, Ky., delivered a stirring address on "Sin."

DETROIT'S NEW MAYOR IS RATED AS POLITICAL PARADOX

BORN IN DETROIT IN 1862 AND EDUCATED IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS
CHAMPION SPELLER AND LEADER IN ATHLETIC ACTIVITIES
MUNICIPAL NEWS REPORTER AND CITY EDITOR DETROIT PAPER

John C. Lodge

MEMBER OF CITY COUNCIL MOST OF HIS LIFE
SERVED AS ACTING MAYOR FOR NINE YEARS
MAYOR-ELECT NEVER MADE A CAMPAIGN SPEECH

Exclusive Central Press Dispatch to Gazette

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 22.—Most people think that President Coolidge invented silence. The fact is that John Lodge's patent on it ran out before Coolidge was born.

Lodge himself is about as interesting personally as most quiet men are. It is his career that strikes the imagination.

John Lodge, elected mayor of Detroit over John W. Smith, wet candidate, is sixty-five years old. He has held office nearly all of his working life. Yet he never has made a campaign speech, never has had an organization. And seldom, indeed, has he ever failed to receive the most votes of any one on the ticket.

He has risen from a municipal news reporter to the mayoralty of the fourth city of the United States after long years of service, in a public career without a blemish, with the confidence of the people.

Was Newspaper Man.
At one time he was city editor of a Detroit newspaper. When he got the job the city council passed a resolution of best wishes.

The outstanding characteristic of John Lodge is the confidence the people have placed in him during a long life in the public eye. If attacks have been made on him by the opposition, in desperate efforts to slay off inevitable defeat, Lodge has remained silent.

The most that could be gotten out of him in the greatest of pressure and attack has been that if the people wanted his opponent they would vote for him, and if they wanted him instead, they would vote for him. And from this fortified position no political bombardment ever has been able to dislodge him.

Now, why should such a quiet man have a hold on the people, and why should they elect him mayor of their city after a lifetime in city council, during which time he served as acting mayor of the city for something like nine years?

What is there about the personality of such a man? That's the thing that is interesting.

Was an Athlete

John Lodge was born in Detroit, August 12, 1862. He was educated in the public schools of the city and in the old Michigan Military Academy at Orchard Lake, approximately twenty-five miles from Detroit. At this school he won a reputation for soldierly bearing and aptitude. He was a champion speller and a leader in athletic and scholastic activities.

Lodge was a left-hander and played first base on the ball team. When the old Detroit Athletic club was formed, he played on its team, and in 1892 went to Washington with the team to play for the championship in its class.

Lodge was the son of a doctor—Dr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Lodge. Perhaps his silence is a heritage of the traditions of the medical profession.

STOLEN THIRD TIME

For the third time in six weeks, Q. Martin, N. Galloway St., has had his automobile stolen.

Caution as the result of having his Chevrolet sedan taken while parked on Cincinnati streets in the last few weeks, Martin put the auto in a paid parking space in that city last Thursday night. He called for the machine Saturday morning and found the car gone.

An attendant at the auto park told Martin that a man of the same description drove the machine away early Friday morning, and was not detained since the attendant thought the other man was Martin.

No trace of the car has since been found. The auto was recovered in a short time the other two times it was stolen.

Leopard Coat Causes Beating
BROOKLYN, N. Y.—A Brooklyn man is being held on $500.00 bail by Judge Golden because he mistook a woman in a leopard skin coat for his wife. The man had a quarrel with his wife and she walked out in her new coat. He followed her with a stick in his hand and pretty soon saw a woman wearing a leopard skin coat. He brought his stick into play. When overpowered by a patrolman, he discovered it wasn't his wife at all. "I am awfully sorry," he told the judge. "I thought she was my wife."

CANDIDATES GIVEN TIME EXTENSION TO FILE STATEMENTS

About 100 candidates are estimated to have been delinquent in the filing of their campaign expense with R. E. Dunkel, clerk of the board of elections, within the ten-day limit following the November 8 election, prescribed by law.
Expense statements of nearly 175 candidates are on file with the board, but Mr. Dunkel asserts there were 267 candidates for public office in Greene County, all of whom are required to submit expense accounts.

Mr. Dunkel declared he will extend the time of filing one week until Friday, November 25, before turning in a list of the accounts to Clarence J. Brown, secretary of state.

If the letter of the law was strictly enforced, candidates who failed to file their statements within the legal period, would not be permitted to qualify for the office to which they were elected.

Norris a Born Rebel;
Stuns Party Regulars

Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska may enter the presidential lists under the Progressive banner, or may be drafted by the G. O. P. He's a rabid insurgent, and has even vowed to defeat members of his own party.
(International Illustrated News)

This is another in the series of close-ups of presidential possibilities, written by Fred L. Lindelton, Washington correspondent for the International Illustrated News. In these articles Mr. Lindelton discusses personalities rather than politics.

By FRED L. LINDELTON

International Illustrated New Staff Correspondent

Party regularity doesn't mean a thing to Senator George W.
Norris of Nebraska. Norris is registered as a Republican. But he's Republican in name only.

Norris's sense of decency was outraged when he learned of the spending of millions in the Pennsylvania Senatorial primaries last year. Whereupon he made all the "regulars" shudder when he invaded the Keystone State and fought like the dickens to elect a Democrat!

There's some talk that Norris may head a Progressive ticket.
Others opine that, if the presidential nominations were offered him by the G. O. P., the prize would be a White House pet. He never engages in social life. He stays by himself.

Norris stands apart from all the other Washingtonians. He is emphatically not a "mink." He isn't a White House pet. He never engages in social life. He stays by himself.

He believes in that rather eloquent motto: "Be yourself." He does just as he pleases. It wouldn't surprise anybody if he took the action to stump the country for Al Smith.

PLAIN FURNITURE ADDS TO FLOOR AREA

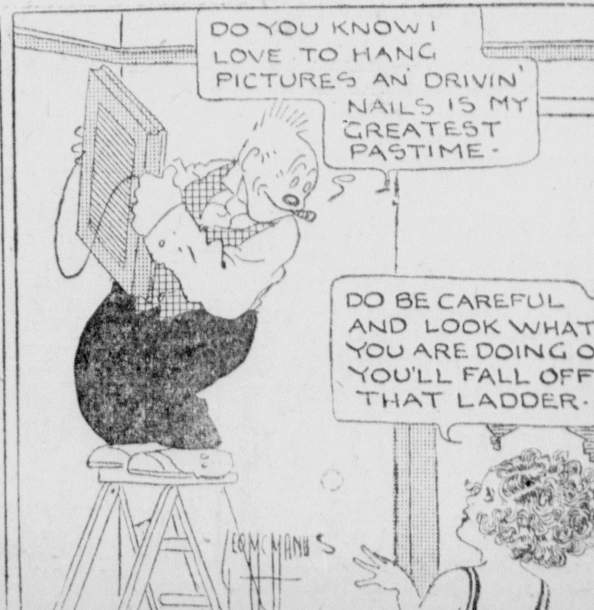

By HILDA HUNT

In the present vogue for the simply furnished room of early American or peasant influence we are eliminating elaboration of both furniture and wall space to gain a greater floor area. Built-in, rather than built-out, wall cupboards and shelf groups are now the order of the day, with only such furniture as is necessary to convenience and comfort. Many a parlor piece the housewife used to cherish has gone to the antique shop around the corner, or to the furniture grave, in the process of eliminating the old-fashioned parlor in favor of the combination living and dining room. Perhaps it is this elimination that has brought about the vogue for the simpler furnishing. At any rate, the less furniture that goes into the present day better.

The room pictured above is a good example of the peasant influence in the sun parlor dining room. A china closet cut into the wall not only saves space, but gives the drop leaf table the effect of a sideboard when folded against room, provided it is enough, the wall. For dining the table is naturally drawn to the center of the room. Aside from the ladder-backed chairs that go with this table, a large wicker chair, a peasant ladder back cushioned sofa, and a reading table, make up the quota. Built into the wall opposite the china closet is a small bookcase. Floor lamps with shades

READ THIS FIRST:
LILY LEXINGTON is the spoiled only daughter of the CYRUS LEXINGTONS. Her mother's fondest dreams are realized when she becomes engaged to a rich bachelor named STALEY DRUMMOND, and the wedding date is set for June. The day after Staley proposes Lily goes down town to meet her friend, SUE CAIN, and sees a man watching her through the crowd. She is instantly attracted by his face, and then she sees that he is a taxi driver. But moved by some sudden impulse, she jumps into the cab and is driven home. Lily learns that his name is PAT FRANCE and that he owns his cab in a company headed by his friend, ROY JETTERSON. He says he is going to sell it to help finance a piston ring that he has invented and wants to put on the market.

As the days go by Lily realizes that she is in love with him. About the time she makes up her mind she cannot marry Staley, her mother announces the engagement, and she resigns herself to the idea of the wedding on June tenth. Pat evidently has sold the cab in the meantime, for he disappears from the streets.

Then about three weeks before the wedding, Lily goes out to the back yard of her home and finds him cleaning her automobile. He is Mrs. Lexington's new chauffeur, he tells Lily with a grin, and adds that he took the job simply to be near her for the few weeks before her marriage. But Lily begins to be very uncertain about that marriage once more. She's in love with Pat, and finally tells him that if he would marry her she would jilt Staley and cheerfully be a poor man's wife. Pat says she isn't cut out to be poor, and takes her to his own humble little home to meet his family, who are rather shy before the rich Miss Lexington. Staley finds out about their meetings and he and Lily quarrel over Pat, but Staley refuses to let her break the engagement. Then Mrs. Lexington tells Pat he will have to wait on table, as well as drive the car. Lily overhears her talking to him one morning from the head of the stairs, and breathlessly waits to hear the answer.

(NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER XIX
Lily crept down to the landing and peered into the lower hall.

Pat was facing her mother and slowly shaking his dark, handsome head. There was a small smile on his lips, but his blue eyes were serious and watchful.

"No, I couldn't wait on anybody's table, Mrs. Lexington," he said, in his deep voice that always stirred Lily almost as much as his touch stirred her. "You hired me to keep your automobile in order and drive it. I didn't mind washing the window yesterday, or cleaning up the back yard the day before. But I certainly am not going to carry soup and fish around a table."

Mrs. Lexington's chin, that she always carried up lest she get a double chin, went up a fraction of an inch higher. "It would be only for a couple of days, Pat," she said to him, coldly. "Just until I get someone to take Carrie's place."

He shook his head once again. "I can't take Carrie's place even for two days. I'm no woman to be working around the kitchen, Mrs. Lexington. . . . I don't want to work around anything but automobiles anyway. If it was just work I wanted I could have gone into my own Dad's grocery store."

"I'm not interested in your history, Pat!" Mrs. Lexington cut in, sharply. "You'll either learn to wait on table tonight or go right now."

To Lily's amazement, Pat did not answer. She saw a dark red flush go over his face and neck, and he gave a little laugh and walked out of the house. The front door closed gently behind him.

She ran down the stairs, "Mother!" she cried. "That's a terrible thing to do—to make Pat wait on table! It's a dreadful thing for you to do!"

"It's nothing to be ashamed of—to wait on table. It's good, honest work," said Mrs. Lexington, as if she were making a speech on capital and labor. "When a man takes a job he ought to be willing to do anything he can to hold that job." She sailed into the little waiting room at the end of the hall with a crisp rustling of her linen skirts, and sat down at the telephone.

Lily followed her, furiously indignant.

"Mother, you can't do a thing like this to Pat!" she went on. "You know he's in love with me, poor fellow. And he knows Staley's coming to dinner, and that he'd have to wait on him—I hate Pat to leave us this way. What will he think of us?"

Her mother set down the telephone that she had picked up and turned upon her. Her face was scarlet and her eyes were like points of steel. She smacked the telephone table smartly with the flat of her jeweled hand.

"Do you suppose I care for one minute what my chauffeur thinks of me?" she demanded, her voice shaking with rage. "Do you think I care how he leaves this house? All I care about is that he does leave before you lose your senses entirely, Lily Lexington! Running out of the house last night with that fellow that you know nothing about! Heaven knows where you were with him—and heaven alone knows what all you lately!"

Lily told her, and all the anger

went out of her face as she spoke leaving it stamped with a kind of gentleness that never had shown itself there before.

"Love—that's what ails me lately," she said, with the new wisdom that had been slowly coming to her in the weeks since she first laid eyes on Pat France in his khaki uniform and brown puttees. "I'm in love with him, and you can't stop me from being in love with him. I can't stop myself. Don't you suppose I would if I could? You know I like money just as well as the next one, Mother, but I love Pat. . . . Now, what am I going to do about it? You're my mother. You help me out."

It was an honest and desperate little plea. And not only that, but it was the first time that Lily Lexington ever had come to her mother for real help in her life—the first time that she ever had asked her for anything but things that could be bought—dresses or furs or rings or money for matinees.

Before now, Mrs. Lexington had never refused her anything. She never had failed to give her the dresses, the furs, the dancing slippers, the matinee tickets. "Lily must have everything that the other girls have," had always been her chorus.

But now that she was asking for something that she greatly needed—her mother's help in the biggest problem that ever had come to her—Mrs. Lexington refused it!

"What help do you need, I'd like to know?" she blazed. "Your future is all arranged for you—it's out out like a pattern for a dress, and you know it, Lily! You're engaged to Staley Drummond—as fine a man as ever stood in two shoes—and you've promised to marry him on the tenth of June!"

Her forefinger shot out and tapped that date on the desk calendar on the table before her. "The tenth of June—only three weeks from now, and here you are telling me you're in love with my chauffeur! It's not decent! You ought to be ashamed of yourself!"

Lily's lovely hands twisted and untwisted like the thoughts behind her troubled eyes. "But is it decent to marry Staley when I'm in love with another man? Isn't that something to be ashamed of, too?"

She voiced the problems that had been sweeping her this way and that for weeks, hoping that her mother would show her the right way to go—the right thing to do for all concerned.

"You see, I don't want to marry a poor man, Mother," she tried to explain. "I wish Pat had millions, but he hasn't. And yet I love him so much that I feel as if I can't let him go."

"Love him—nonsense!" Mrs. Lexington's words cracked like a whip. "You're in love with a good looking face and a pair of puttees, that's all!"

She took down the receiver and spoke a number into the telephone—the number of the employment agency down town.

While she was waiting for central to give it to her she turned and finished what she had to say: "You just give in to your infatuation for this man, and you'll see where it lands you! You'll wake up some day and find out that there's more to a husband—than a straight nose and a nice head of hair. You will wonder where your Pat's bank account is. You'll wonder where all your friends are. Sue Cain and Ann Barney, and all the rest of them. You'd better wake up, Lily, and think things over." All of which left Lily in the state of doubt that she had been in for weeks and weeks—not knowing from one minute to the next what she wanted to do.

However, the thing was settled for Lily within the next half hour of that warm and sunny May morning.

She left her mother telephoning for a new butler-chauffeur and ran upstairs.

From the sewing room came the steady hum of the sewing machine that was stitching hems and seams into her wedding clothes. Out in the back yard a carpenter was at work making a long, rough table that was to be covered with white satin and used to display all the wedding gifts that were beginning to come in—the silver coffee and tea service, the cutglass cocktail glasses, a clock of real Sevres, a huge cigarette box of hammered brass and ebony.

Lily paused at the back window long enough to hear the cheerful sound of Pat whistling. "It All Depends on You."

"He's in the garage," she said to herself, her eyes on the white curtains in the windows of the room above it. "I suppose he wants to leave everything in order, or maybe he's packing his clothes!"

Then, suddenly, she wheeled around from the window and flew to turn on the water in her bathtub. . . . She must see him before he went! She must make up her mind what to do now, before he was gone!

In record time she bathed, brushed her perfect teeth, combed the golden, fluffy masses of her hair, and hurried into the soft silk underthings that she took from a satchel lined drawer that scented them delicately like flower petals.

In the closet was an orchid-and-pink silk sports dress that her mother had bought for her from one of those simple hand-made little dresses that French women make by hand and sell to women like Mrs. Lexington for exorbitant sums of money.

With only a second's hesitation Lily took it from its silk-padded hanger and put it on. On the closet shelf was a folded square of white tissue paper. Within it, Lily knew was her real lace wedding veil just back from the dry cleaning shop.

Her "going away" hat of pale grey straw lined with shell-pink was in its perfumed box. The suit to match it hung in a dust-proof bag.

A new pale gray leather suitcase with her initials on it in sterling silver, stood on the floor. Beside it about other people's joys and disappointments.

She only knew, in some vague half-formed way, that the flowers represented the life she was leaving without a regret—without a single regret.

"Even if I'm poor I reckon it won't be so hard to bear—if I have Pat," she told herself, going quietly down the back stairs of the house.

But she knew nothing about being poor. The only poverty she had even seen was in picture shows. And so she went through the yard and up the stairs to the room above the garage with the lightest heart that ever had stirred in her breast.

She knocked on his door and went in. She had made up her mind, completely and happily, at least!
